Two of the four bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—E. D. Mouzon, of North Carolina, and John M. Moore, of Texas—known as "the four horsemen of the political apocalypse of 1928," today were attacked in damage suits, asking $100,000. The suits were filed in North Carolina and Texas district courts, as echoes of the anti-Smith activities of the churchmen involved.

Dr. Rembert G. Smith, Sparta, Ga., minister, author of "Petitions in a Protestant Church," published last year, in which he attacked church leaders for "converting their pulpits into political stumps," prepared to ask the courts to give him $50,000 from each of the two bishops for alleged defamatory remarks made about him when the charges he filed against them were pending last year before the general conference in Dallas.

The suit against Bishop Moore has been formally filed, according to advice from George W. Parker, clerk of the northern federal district of Texas, and Miss F. A. Barnett, of Charlotte, deputy clerk of the western federal district of North Carolina, stating she had been petitioned for filing against Bishop Mouzon.

Radio Control Grants WGST Unlimited Time

Information was received last Friday by David H. Brinkmoe, general manager of Radio Station WGST, that the federal radio commission has granted that station unlimited broadcasting time effective immediately. At the same time it was learned that the application of the Georgia Tech station for increased output power had been denied. No reason was given for the denial of the power request.

Brinkmoe, while stating that unlimited time on the air will enable WGST to serve as Columbia Broadcasting System outlet for all of the bigger programs over the network of 83 stations, announced that it will require several days before the unlimited time can be put into effect. This is contingent upon the station at Macon making arrangements for broadcasting on a variant frequency. At present Macon and WGST both use the 890-kilocycle channel.

Fair Division of All Profits Urged for Labor by Pontiff

Pope, in Radio Address, Gives Resume of Encyclical To Be Issued by Vatican in 10 Days—Bitterly Attacks Communism.

BY JOHN EVANS.
VATICAN CITY, May 15.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI promised the Catholic world a new charter of labor to elevate the workman's status in a radio address today commemorating the 40th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's labor encyclical "rerum novarum."

This new charter will be issued in the form of a long encyclical entitled "Quadragesimo Anno" and will be published in about a week. Broadcasting for the first time in the modern tongues of Italian, French and German successively, the pontiff said the economic world must be re-organized to achieve justice for the working man. He laid stress upon three words which he said would express the meaning of the entire document—fraternity, action, sacrifice.

10,000 Workers in Audience.
From the Papal throne and under a great canopy in the courtyard of San Damasco, the pope addressed directly 10,000 Catholic workers who stood bareheaded in a scene which was brilliant with the banners of many nations, the labors of papal uniforms and the somberness of ecclesiastical garb. He made the long address since he was elected nine years ago. It lasted for an hour and 20 minutes.

GEORGIA MAN, 70, KILLS SON-IN-LAW IN FAMILY FEUD

Quarrel Climaxed by Separation of Farmer and Wife Ends in Shooting at Fayetteville.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., May 15.—Eddie Banks, 30, was killed, and his father-in-law, Charles V. Griffin, 50, was wounded in a gun battle following a family dispute on the Banks farm, near here, today. Griffin was in the county jail here tonight on a charge of murder.

A load from a double-barrelled shotgun blew Banks' head almost off his body.

A family feud, dating back several weeks to the separation of Griffin and his wife, now living with her daughter, is believed to have been responsible for the killing. Sheriff B. W. Willet was informed that Griffin went to the home of Banks late this afternoon with a shotgun and started an argument with his wife. It is said that Banks interfered and ordered the aged farmer to leave the home. Griffin resented Banks' remarks, the sheriff was told, and the battle followed when Banks seized a rifle.

Griffin was placed in jail after receiving medical attention.

Both Banks and Griffin were prominent in this section. Griffin is the father of five children.

LIFE IN DANGER, ENVOY DECLARES

Leiva Communicates Report on Attack to Government.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Renewed agitation for withdrawing immunity from the prohibition laws from the foreign diplomats sprang up today as an aftermath of the attack by liquor thieves on Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, charge d'affaires of the Salvadoran legation.

At the same time Dr. Leiva, who was injured in a fight with the attackers, said he had reported to his government that his life was in danger here because of inadequate police protection.

Senator Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, a prohibitionist, said he was willing to join a movement to forbid the presence of liquor in the embassies and legations.

"There doesn't seem to be any sense in allowing these diplomats to transpire liquor in a dry country," he said.

KNOX IS INDICTED AND SENTENCED

Extortionist Pleads Guilty and Draws Term on Chain Gang.

Desperate, hungry, in need of funds, Earl W. Knox, 50, of Chicago, tore a leaf from the notebook of the extortionist racketeers of the "windy city" and wrote a letter on Monday to Mrs. Hugh M. Willet, prominent Atlanta woman.

On Friday afternoon, just five days after Knox penned his threatening missive, he stood before Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court when he was indicted for extortion.

Quick, skillful work by city detectives and postoffice inspectors led to Knox's arrest Thursday afternoon, and his indictment speedily followed Friday. Five minutes after the grand jury released the true bill Knox entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced.

Letters alleged to have been sent to Mrs. Willet by Knox threatened harm to Mrs. Willet's children. Mrs. Milton Dargan, Jr., and G. W. McKenzie, and her grandchildren, Anna and George Dargan, and Frank and Jane McKenzie, and her husband, Hugh M. Willet, under the money was paid.

Three Months Off.

Judge Howard allowed Knox three months off from a maximum sentence of five years for frankly confessing to the plot and pleading guilty. The penalty for sending a threatening letter is two to five years, and Knox was given a sentence of four years and nine months to five years.

Knox had little to say when sentence was passed. He declared that he could only beg the mercy of the court and ask the court to believe that he did it only under the most critical circumstances, and that he had to have the money.

JURORS PAY $25 FINE After Convicting Man

ALBANY, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—A. C. Koppe, convicted by a jury in city court here and fined $25, made such a plea to the court that the jurors paid his fine.

Koppe had been indicted for carrying a pistol, carrying a concealed weapon and pointing a pistol at another.

The jury acquitted him on the first two counts but found him guilty of pointing the pistol.

Koppe pledged that at some future time he would return the money to the members of the jury.

ALTERATION LAW PUZZLES CAPITOL

Officials Seek Means To Punish Offenders, If Tampering Is Found.

Responsibility for irregularities in Georgia's 1931 motor carrier regulatory law, found by a legislative reorganization committee Thursday, turned Friday upon whether or not a conference committee of the house and senate agreed to the changes in the bill after it left the lower branch for the last time on the day the special session adjourned.

Representative G. A. Huddleston, of Meriwether, a member of the committee, who was one of the proponents of motor carrier legislation, said that the only conference report he knew anything about "was overwhelmingly rejected by the house."

Meaningful legal interest at the state capital is focused upon the question of whether or not there is constitutional or statutory law to punish an alteration of a legislative bill, after it passes from the membership as a whole to officials, in the event of tampering.

Rumors of changes in bills, and investigations of such rumors, have been current for years but there is no recollection of any indictment in connection with such charges. High official opinion at the capital was divided Friday.

BAPTISTS SCORE RUSSIAN ATHEISM

Pass Resolution Calling on Soviets To Respect Right of Conscience.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 15.—(AP)—Invasion of human rights through religious persecution was charged to the soviet Russian government in a resolution adopted today by the Southern Baptist convention which "called upon that government to grant its citizens 'indefeasible rights of conscience in matters of religion.'"

The convention referred the resolution to a committee after it was read from the floor by Dr. L. E. Barton, secretary of the Alabama State Baptist convention, and later unanimously passed after the committee reported it favorably without modification.

After approving the resolution the committee was directed to forward the resolution to the soviet authorities on behalf of the 4,000,000 constituents of the convention. With it went "the good friendship of the convention to its citizens 'indefeasible rights of conscience in matters of religion.'"

Bar to Human Rights.
"If it is said by the soviet government that there is no God," the resolution said, "our reply is that such a declaration does violence to the self-consciousness of the human mind and heart which abundantly testifies to the human spirit that there is a supreme being."

"All just human law and government must be based on this elemental truth: human governments have no rights whatever in the matter of conscience. No earthly government has any right to require its citizens or subjects to be religious or to abstain from religious convictions and activities."

"We hold that the Russian government in its persecution of religion as expressed in the closing of churches, discriminating against ministers of religion, limiting of free speech and freedom of assembly, is not only violating the inherent rights of humanity but is hindering its own national development and endangering its own safety and solidarity as a nation."

"We appeal to the soviet government in the name of reason, justice, conscience, humanity and God Almighty, that she fully recognize and respect the rights of conscience."

WHITNEY ENTRY RULES FAVORITE ON EVE OF RACE

Twenty Grand Given "Edge" by Wise Boys. Great Chance, However, for Outsider To Crash Through to Victory.

FAST TRACK SEEN THIS AFTERNOON

Turf "Experts" Predict Open Race; Twenty Grand Draws Middle Position on Track.

BY ED DANFORTH.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, May 15.—Buoyed up by the promise of smiling skies and a brown, firm track tomorrow, the milling crowds downtown in Louisville sounded the first hearty, happy notes of the overture of the 57th Kentucky Derby tonight.

With no rain in sight to quench the fire of enthusiasm, a fact duly broadcast by a weather bureau that for once sang in close harmony with the Chamber of Commerce and the Jockey Club, the Derby eve throng seemed bigger than usual. It surged in and out of the hotel lobbies and rolled down the sidewalks. It trundled in expensive motor cars across the river where in the indulgent air of Indiana there are night clubs where games of chance of a mechanical nature operate and the contralto sisters put their heads close together for blue chords.

They jammed into a dozen ballrooms on the Kentucky side where supper sipping and sipping shaking went in progress. And far into the night after and again could be heard the eerie call of the festive gong in 617 to the equally hilarious coterie in 732 across the court.

And tomorrow, about 5 o'clock, a gallant field will go to the post for the Derby. Fifteen of the best three-year-olds in America have accepted the issue and at least 12 will start in the mile-and-a-quarter race for $50,000 added money.

Three May Be Scratched.
If the weather continues fair and fine it is probable that Up, winner of the Agua Saliente Derby, will be withdrawn. He is given a chance only in the mud. Likewise Anchors Aweigh, the mudlark member of the Greenstreak stable, will be scratched, leaving Twenty Grand and Surf Board to carry Mrs. Whitney's silks in the big race. Don Leon, a westerner of no great promise, is an unlikely starter in any event. So the odds are sectional contest between the east and the west will be renewed tomorrow with the issue very much in doubt.

The west has won for the last seven renewals on this rich old race. Black Gold in 1924. Bubbling Over in 1926. Reigh Court in 1928, and Clyde Van Deusen in 1929. But the edge

Round Table Talk about Food

CHATS WITH A POPULAR HOSTESS

BY MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN

Chairman, Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries

Under the spell of warm spring days, the thought of eating in the open air is ever present, and will be with us until long after Labor Day, for there are so many lovely places beneath the sky and the trees where one can have a dainty and satisfying meal.

I should say that at the moment the hunting breakfast is the most fashionable and romantic gesture of hospitality that links itself with the out-of-doors. Later, among the most formal of the outdoor parties will be those on board the small or large craft that are appearing on the inland waters to a greater degree each year. Both afford a beautiful opportunity for attractive service and original menus. Breakfast and tea on the terrace of a beautiful home can also be developed with a certain amount of formality that makes them impressive without destroying one whit of their outdoor appeal.

Now, with these events of society disposed of, we may turn joyously to the many simpler picnics and outings that are available to families whose no circumstances at all to those that are quite luxurious. There is open to all of us the picnic in the woods, whether we go there in a hand-some motor car, the community bus, boat or street car.

The clambake is one of the most elaborate of the outdoor parties, and

Green Foods at Mid-Summer Prices

In the midst of so-called "hard times" many have been wondering why it is that fresh vegetables and fruits are so reasonable.

Fresh peas, beans, spinach, limas, salad greens and fruits of all sorts hailing from California, Arizona, Texas, Florida and other southern states can be found in the market at just about normal and mid-summer prices.

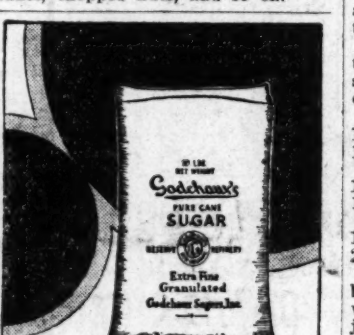

One of New York city's largest dealers in fresh produce gives a particularly good picture of the situation in which growers, commission men and retailers find themselves, and accounts for prevailing low prices in the following manner:

Abundant crops and the use of modern traction methods instead of man power in farming have resulted in overproduction, he tells us. Today, with the aid of up-to-date machinery, one man does the work of six acres he manages 16 to 20, with the result that he raises too many peas, beans, onions—too much of everything to take care of the nation's requirements.

Today the same condition is true in the poultry, butter and egg market," he continued. "Never in the history of this business have prices been so low. Throughout the great southwest there have been extensive dairy developments and added facilities for storing these products. Spurred to action by continued high winter prices for eggs and chickens in the east, California has created great poultry farms to take care of the winter egg production. In that country everything is done outdoors; labor is cheaper; there is warmth, sunlight, green food, and every condition is favorable for overwhelming success. In fact, the enterprise has been too successful. Products have come too fast and without interruption. When the demand for eggs was here and the eggs were not, it looked like a bonanza. Now that the eggs and chickens are here and the demand is not, prices are way down and the business is no longer operating at a profit."

The produce dealers find another force at work during the present season. People are determined not to buy what they can do without. Unemployment is partly responsible for this condition. Fear of spending comes next. Even among well-to-do households where there is no change in financial conditions, there is a disinclination to live generously. As a consequence there is a surplus of luxury products at prices that come within the range of the average pocketbook.

For simple family service one can do very nice things with fresh cottage cheese, divided into several parts, one flavored with chopped chives, others with pimento, preserved currants, chopped nuts, and so on.

NATIONALLY KNOWN FOR SUPERIOR QUALITY

SAVING WITHOUT SCRIMPING

BY EDITH M. SHAPCOTT

Nutrition Consultant, Home-Making Center, New York

Every member of the family has a place in his heart for the daily ration of eggs. Bacon and eggs, duck and eggs, chicken and eggs, through a hard morning's work. A "soft-cooked" egg just follows naturally after Little Jane's orange juice. A fluffy omelet is a weekly substitute for meat in many households. In summer there are countless ways in which to use eggs in salad forms. Devilled eggs, egg and tomato salad, egg and vegetable salad combinations... what delightful hot-dish dishes they are, and how easy to prepare.

This season an important point about eggs is their low price. Do you realize that eggs are approaching their pre-war level? But that does not mean that we should buy fancy eggs for every purpose. That is an unnecessary expenditure in these slack times when a little nest-egg saved by the careful homemaker may tide the family over difficult weeks of unemployment or illness.

But let's suggest to the two points about eggs which many homemakers overlook, and thereby fall into habits of extravagance. Those points are... how to buy eggs and how to keep them. They should always be stored in the refrigerator or in some other dry, cool place that is free from odors, for the shells are porous and absorb strong, objectionable odors.

The color of the eggshells varies with the breed of the hen; but since color does not indicate the food value of an egg, it is neither necessary nor economical to pay for a preferred shade, whether it be white or with vegetables, what to do with the end portion of the meat is always a question. One very nice way in which to use it is ham soufflé.

Ham Soufflé.
2 cups cooked ground ham
1-2 cups thick white sauce
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites
Salt and pepper to taste

To the hot white sauce add the beaten yolks of eggs, then the ground ham and seasoning. When cool, fold in the egg whites which have been beaten stiffly. Pour into a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for about 50 minutes. Serve at once.

Lamb croquettes are appetizing; lamb en casserole does very well; but lamb molded in mint jelly strikes a most responsive note for many palates... particularly now, as the spring and summer months shed out suggestions for somewhat piquant foods. You can make this recipe early in the morning and have it all ready to serve without further fussing. A good combination follows:

Lamb in Mint Jelly.
1 cup cold diced lamb
1 package lemon or mint-flavored gelatin
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup cold cooked peas and diced carrots
1 pint boiling water
2 sliced hard-boiled eggs

Dissolve the gelatin in one pint of boiling water (less one tablespoon of water). When cool add the lemon juice. (If the lemon-flavored gelatin is used, add also a teaspoon of chopped fresh mint; omit, however, if mint-flavored gelatin is chosen for the body of the loaf.) Pour a quantity of the liquid into a fancy loaf mold; when the gelatin begins to set, put in the diced vegetables; cover with a layer of gelatin, and when partly set add the diced lamb; cover again and as this layer sets add the sliced hard-boiled eggs. Put in the refrigerator until wanted; unmold on a platter, garnish with lettuce and slices of lemon, and serve with mayonnaise. This makes an excellent Sunday night supper dish, as it provides both meat and salad courses.

When one buys a ham hock to cook

ONE OF LIFE'S LITTLE LUXURIES

Hardy souls may deny it, but it is doubtful if honest conviction lurks behind any of those vehement statements made by men and busy women about "not caring for breakfast served in bed."

Just fit a solid-tired tray over the knees of any tired business man on vacation, being sure to send up with it his unopened morning paper, his mail, with a paperknife at hand; a sporting magazine and a comic. On the tray, an attractive breakfast set with an individual pot of steaming-hot coffee and plenty... yes plenty of rich cream. There will of course be fresh fruit in season: nearby, hot buttered toast, all golden brown and a boiled egg of just the right "turn."

The man in your household may protest a bit at first at this unusual attention. But remind him he is on vacation, or that it's the week-end for relaxation. Murmurs of dissent will evaporate; he'll settle down cozily... and call for more.

As to busy women on vacation, or merely spending the week-end at home... Why stiffen the spine against this easy way in which to acquire luxurious sensations? Put on your prettiest negligee; now, if at no other time, relax; lol languidly among the cushions; for the moment, forget to be efficient. Nothing so sets one up for a week of hard work as does the sense of affluence inspired by this ceremony which—if we are not hotel apartment dwellers with service within easy reach—even the least devoted family is willing to contribute to the wage-earner's cause.

The first requisite, however, has escaped us. It must be a really pretty tray that will rest on the mattress so that there will be no jangling and balancing of the breakfast service. But with the colorful china and glassware, the dainty napery to be found at even the five-and-ten now, this item presents no obstacle.

With it all must go a flexible spirit; the ability to let the world slide and enjoy the peace of the moment. When one can do this, the stage is set for very pleasant memories of the far-flung.

Have busy mothers been left out of the picture? A thousand pardons. They should have come before even a mention of the men!

Glorifying the Biscuit.

You can make biscuits tremendously attractive for tea service if you will cut them fairly small, brush the top lightly with melted butter and in the center of each place a lump of loaf sugar that has been soaked in orange juice containing a bit of the grated peel. These are also nice to serve for luncheon, when the main dish is a mixed fresh fruit salad.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAMOUS WOMEN

CECELIA LOFTUS

Miss Cecelia Loftus, renowned throughout England and America for the roles that she has made famous on the stage, and for her inimitable imitations which have won praise abroad as well as here, has a great liking for home cooking—and keeps on file a number of recipes for dishes that she is particularly fond of.

Being English by birth, Miss Loftus pays much attention to the dainties that accompany afternoon tea. For her, tea is the high mark of each of regular afternoon tea service. The English woman is never so much at ease as at her tea table; the Englishman is never more responsive and at ease than when enjoying tea at the hands of a charming hostess. Here we have the habit of lingering over luncheon, often from 12 until 2. A delightful time that time, serving a restful half hour period for a o'clock tea, would put many a hostess in a better humor for dinner, and bring the big business man's refreshed instead of fagged after a day in town.

Apologies of these homely sentiments it is interesting to note that in Miss Loftus' later years, the granite-like sister in the new "East Lynne," she takes a domestic part and never appears without her house-keeping costume!

A Fancy Frosting.
Have you ever tried Manilla frosting for a fresh baked white cake? It's delicious. The foundation for it is made in this way:
1 cup brown sugar
1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1-2 cup boiling water
1 egg white, stiffly beaten
1-2 teaspoon vanilla

Blend the sugar, cream of tartar and water and set over a low flame, stirring constantly until the sugar is dissolved and the mixture boils. Continue cooking until a small amount of syrup forms a soft ball in cold water or "sugar a thread." Pour the syrup in a fine stream over the egg white, beating constantly, then add the vanilla, beating the whole until it is almost stiff enough to spread on the cake.

Just before he finish, add to half of the frosting some finely chopped nuts and figs and chopped nut meats. Use this for a filling and spread the main frosting smoothly over the top. This diversified frosting makes a complete dessert—a delicious companion for the after-dinner coffee.

We firmly believe that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. We've been looking at the world across a grocery counter too long not to be sure of that. But we haven't been fooled by what's going on outside our store windows... We've noticed that most men, on their way home to dinner, have a quick eye for a smart dress or a saucy bonnet.

In short, husbands like to eat fine food and see fine feathers. Which doesn't seem unreasonable to us—except, you know the fuss they make if you run up a bill for them.

Of course, you also know our advice in such matters: If you buy your food for cash at an A & P store, you're sure of the finest food money can buy—and at prices so low you won't have to skimp on your dinners or your dresses to pay for it. You can actually keep all dressed up on what you save in A & P stores—without running into debt for it either.

THE MODERN JACK SPRATTS

BY ISABEL ELY LORD

Editor of Everybody's Cookbook

Jack Spratt could eat no fat.

His wife could eat no lean.

And so between the two

They licked the platter clean.

There is an Italian method of cooking salt cod that Mr. Spratt likes especially . . . and Mrs. Spratt plans to make this treat for him tonight. Here is her dinner menu which Jack thinks is fit for a king . . . an Italian king, perhaps.

Codfish Gardineria.
Old-fashioned Panfried Potatoes
Eggplant
String Beans
Sweet Pickles
Chicory Salad
Scalloped Peaches
Coffee

As always, Mrs. Spratt turns thumbs down on the potatoes, although she looks with longing at the nice, irregularly shaped pieces which have been panfried a crisp, delicious brown in bacon fat. You do not know just how to make old-fashioned fried potatoes? Why, simply cut cooked potatoes into irregular pieces and put them in a hot skillet containing enough sizzling bacon fat to keep the potatoes from sticking, then keep turning them with a fork until all have received some measure of browning . . . and serve immediately.

This time Mrs. Spratt will serve the eggplant mashed, after boiling, so as to avoid having two fried dishes and the fat that would thus be provided. String beans she can eat them often, too, because she can eat them freely. The main dish is made in this way:

Codfish Gardineria.
1-2 tablespoon fat
1-3 cup mixed onion
1-2 cup carrot
1 cup cut turnip
1 cup diced potato
1-2 pound salt cod, soaked.

This makes a generous amount, and of course Mrs. Spratt is careful not to take too large a helping, but Mr. Spratt eats all he wants . . . and that is plenty! After melting the fat in a saucepan, she panfries the onion in it for three minutes, then adds the three vegetables—all raw and all cut in small pieces—and enough water to cook them without burning. These she watches until they are tender (they require about 20 minutes' cooking), adds more water as it is necessary, and then the salt cod in flakes, after which the whole is cooked for 20 minutes more. If necessary, more water is added to keep the mixture from burning . . . but no more than is necessary. Parenthetically, when Mrs. Spratt eats her portion she deftly pushes the potato aside, if it is not too mixed in with the other ingredients.

For the scalloped peaches she uses the dried fruit which has been soaked, and makes the dish just like Brown Betty. To make the dietetic requirements for both Jack and herself, she brings two pitchers of sauce to the table, one containing rich cream to pour upon Mr. Spratt's dessert; for herself, a pitcher of fruit sauce made with fresh lemon or orange juice and a bit of the grated rind.

Cut Lettuce With a Knife?

Yes, we may . . . says a famous steward whose experience includes service in royal households. When serving a salad course containing much crisp lettuce he invariably instructs attendants to provide both knife and fork, for "Rules of etiquette were created to make dining gracious and easy," he tells us, "and when the knife contributes to this end its use is not only permissible, but desirable." The custom should not be carried to extremes, however, he reminds us. Not every lettuce leaf requires carving, and those which can be managed with ease without the knife should be so handled.

THE CHEF SUGGESTS

BY JOSEPH BOGGIO, Chef

The Plaza Hotel, New York

You who make frequent pilgrimages to Italian restaurants and partake of their well-known specialties must have wondered what is contained in the fascinating Ravioli which you devour with such relish. I shall tell you . . . and in such a way that you may make them at home if you should feel moved to eat them some rainy night when it is not convenient to be off to your favorite cafe.

Ravioli Stuffing.
Smother in butter three ounces of chopped mushrooms, three ounces of sausage meat, then add three chopped tomatoes. Allow the mixture to cook a little, and to it add some chopped roast veal, beef, sweetbreads, all cut up very fine. Last add some fresh spinach, chopped finely. (The chef also adds cooked calf's brain and a few fillets of anchovies, chopped.) In the home the cook will perhaps find it convenient to use choice bits of left-over meats.) To the whole add two raw eggs, slightly beaten, a spoonful of Parmesan cheese, a little scraped garlic, salt, pepper, nutmeg and sweet basil. Mix well.

Now roll a piece of noodle paste

Put into a steaming pan with a little butter, one pound of lean pork and one pound of chicken, cut in small dice. Let this cook for a while, then sprinkle over it a little flour. Moistened with chicken broth and continue cooking. Add some dried mushrooms, then two stalks of celery and two onions cut in thin strips. Cook separately from the meat until the vegetables are not too well done, then add the meat and seasoning to taste, including a dash of Maggi essence. Serve separately with boiled rice and more of the essence.

Rice Pilaf.
Fry some chopped onion and a half-pound of Carolina rice in two ounces of butter, stir over the fire until the rice is well affected; moisten with a quart of chicken broth or white stock; add a piece of butter the size of an egg, season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook in oven for 18 minutes. Rice pilaf is delicious with meats with which a rich gravy is served.

PLEASE THE MAN
BY CHLOE JAMISON.
Without in any way discounting their fondness for the sweet dessert, there are times when men who are free to order what the whim dictates will choose a certain cheese to finish the meal.

Roquefort or Camembert with toasted crackers and another cup of coffee seems to leave them in a most satisfied mood. Often, in dining rooms of the finer hotels, it is the custom to present a platter of assorted cheeses from which the man makes his choice . . . much as a woman designates her desire in French pastry.

With the cheese course the usual accompaniment is a basket of assorted wafers, including those tempting little Vienna horseshoes sprinkled over with salt and spicy seeds; water crackers and several varieties of the whole wheat type; also thin sliced black bread with caraway seeds. This makes quite an impressive service and one that plagues the curiosity of the man while it flatters his sense of selectivity.

Even for the ordinary household the platter service need not be extravagant, since many of the best varieties of cheese are now packed in individual portions which can be bought singly instead of by the pound or half pound at the delicatessen stores. This permits the use of a variety without the need to buy more than one service of each kind of cheese.

Seasoning Fresh Pineapple.

When preparing fresh pineapple for dessert, pare and dice it fairly early in the day, add plenty of sugar and a sprinkling of salt, and set it away in the ice-box until wanted. The dash of salt brings out its flavor and removes the harshness, and the sugar, of course, adds both sweetness and mellowness . . . the longer it stands the better. The fruit should be covered, to prevent discoloration and flavoring other foods in the refrigerator.

Glassware Should Match.
Of course you know that the glassware for formal service should match. That is to say, it should harmonize in design and color, and there should be a full service in the same pattern for all who are seated at the table. One vagary is permitted. It is correct to use glass of different colors and designs when each place is set alike. Many charming effects are made possible through this novel idea.

At Tiny Tables.
Is everyone particular about the arrangement of little folks' tables? There's a nice bit of psychology involved. For in the presence of a colorful cloth, pretty china and silver, could one spill milk and make crumbs, or even hold one's spoon in that unbecomingly fashion so often adopted with ordinary implements? It is not likely. Such incidental notes lie at the very foundation of the child's reaction to beauty and his pride of ownership. Rice pilaf is delicious with meats with which a rich gravy is served.

DOCTORS INSTALL DR. ARTHUR FORT

Atlanta Becomes New President of Association as Convention Ends.

Formal installation of Dr. Arthur G. Fort, of Atlanta, as president of the Medical Association of Georgia, president-elect; Dr. Marion C. Pruitt, of Atlanta, first vice president; Dr. H. M. Tolleson, of Habersham, second vice president; Dr. M. A. Clark, of Macon, parliamentarian; Dr. O. H. Weaver, of Macon, delegate to the meeting of the American Medical Association, and Dr. C. K. Sharp, of Arlington, alternate delegate.

Dr. Allen H. Bance, of Atlanta, was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Savannah was chosen as the convention city next year.

The elections were preceded Friday by a symposium on urology, in which members of the Georgia Urological Association, an affiliated body, participated. Doctors who presented papers were E. G. Ballenger, W. A. Upchurch, W. B. Emery, C. H. Richardson, Jr., S. P. Holland, Walter R. Holmes, and Marion C. Pruitt.

CITY HALL DEFECTS LAID TO BUILDERS

Alderman W. Guy Coleman, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee of council, Friday afternoon moved to initiate legal proceedings, if needed, to force the National Construction Company, builders of the new Atlanta city hall, to assume responsibility for defects in the structure.

Acting Mayor G. Everett Millican turned over to him for investigation a letter from John A. McDonald, president, denying the firm's responsibility.

Coleman said he would submit the matter to the committee, and that City Attorney James L. Mayson will be called on to force the company to assume its obligation.

Defects listed by the committee include the following:

1. Leaking roof over council chamber.
2. Cracks in plaster on the ground floor.
3. Defects in verde antique marble base on stairs and ground floor.
4. False alignment of terra-cotta columns on thirteenth floor, and cracks.
5. Venetian blinds and window frames awry.
6. Crumbling walls in the tax office.

For the rest of this month, Atlanta's rapidly expanding art colony will have the pleasure of contemplating an exhibit of original works by those of its members who attend classes at the High Museum of Art. The exhibit, thrown open to the public with a reception and tea at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon—fills two galleries and a portion of the hall devoted to Greek statuary, not to mention the "Salon des Refuses," were rejected sketches, canvases and water colors, full of rowdy inscriptions, form one of its most diverting features.

In a casual circuit of the main gallery, one is particularly impressed by the head, shoulders and bust of a reclining nude, executed in pastel by Miss Adele Johnson, third-year student. Miss Johnson, in this work, shows a remarkable flair for the significant in posture and facial expression, and while the design seems a trifle over-crayoned, as to finish, its conception is singularly happy, spontaneous and unaffected. There is also an interesting, if not wholly successful, treatment of colored shadow, and it is evident that Miss Johnson possesses an artist's eye, with the ability to catch and hold a precious moiety of what it perceives.

Herndon Promising.
Extremely promising are four nudes in crayon exhibited by Claud Herndon, first-year student. Mr. Herndon is another who possesses the enviable gift of catching poses which are natural without being trite, and, if he sometimes strikes a false anatomical note, the discord is not one of those things which can't be corrected by study and application.

A mosaic by Carolyn Russell, first-year student, shows an astonishing grasp of the Byzantine convention, with its bejeweled Madonna, clothed in stiffly fluted draperies, and its child, crowned with a bejeweled nimbus.

In the Wings.

Miss Thelma Ripley, standing in the wings of a theater, as Deans used to stand, sketches a concert grand piano at which a musician plays for a little Degenerate dancer, attired in a provocative ballet skirt. A section of the audience, in the left background, evokes the hushed, artificial excitement of the stage.

A nude with sumptuous hips and exiguous torso, somewhat "La Vie Parisienne" in conception, is cleverly executed by Miss Norma Albert, who, in the grudging medium of crayons, black and brown—achieves some remarkable flesh values. Miss Ruth Alsbrook, in the left of modern illustration, dashes off an eccentric head of a female with a long tubular neck, a lady from the pages of "Vogue" or "Vanity Fair."

Miss Alsbrook's treatment of a "musical subject," Debussy's "Enfance d'un Cathedrale," is especially interesting, compared with that of others to whom the subject was assigned. Amid slender Gothic arches, at the foot of a long ray of light diagonally traversing the central arch, subaqueous worshippers huddle together. The design reveals imagination and poetic sensitiveness.

The Green Hat Again.

A highly impressionistic young lady in a green hat and dress is the work of Miss Dorothy Perkins, whose admiration for Renoir expresses itself in a bright, fragmentary impasto. Ras Beall, using a restricted color scale, executes a sonorous "Stage Design for Leivick's 'Golem.'" Precise interiors and a colorful poster by Mary Hutchins are outstanding features of the commercial art exhibit, and advertisements by Clara A. Davis are also noteworthy.

In the smaller gallery, devoted to still life and portraits in oil, works by Mary Hutchins, Adele Johnson, Dorothy Perkins, Fay Reich and Lillian Smith are especially meritorious. Other works that deserve notice are Mosses by Norman Albert, Claud Herndon and Frances Wilson, a nude in crayon by L. R. Longworth, design for a tray, by Claud Herndon and lettering by M. Herndon, Carolyn Russell, Norma Albert, Helen Kaplan, and Christine Lacy. The exhibition will be open to the public until June 1.

Steady development of Candler field as an air mail and air passenger center is seen in the building project which has been started by Eastern Air Transport, Inc., operators of the Atlanta-New York and Atlanta-Miami lines. Enlargement of the present spacious depot will include considerably more space for the motor overhaul shops and the extension of the second floor now confined to that portion of the building occupied by the waiting room, to cover the entire hangar area. Additional office space, made necessary by the line's steadily increasing business, will be provided by the second floor extension. Work already is well under way on the additions, which will provide 5,000 additional square feet of space, and is expected to be completed by July 1.

Lieutenant Charles S. Tidwell, U. S. air corps member of the 88th observation squadron, Post field, Oklahoma, and formerly assistant manager of the Capitol theater here, is visiting his mother, Mrs. C. W. Tidwell, at 964 Piedmont avenue, on a two weeks' leave. Lieutenant Tidwell, who has been in the air service for two years, received his wings last October after completing the regular army courses at Brooks and Kelly fields, San Antonio. His squadron, whose duty it is to direct artillery fire at Fort Sill, Okla., will go to Galveston in July for machine gun and bombing practice. Glenn Holland, another Atlanta air cadet, and on Georgia Tech's championship football team of 1928, is a member of Tidwell's outfit.

Another Atlanta boy who has made good in Uncle Sam's aerial service landed at Candler field Friday to spend the week-end with relatives here. He is Lieutenant T. D. Southworth, connected with the U. S. naval aviation base at Pensacola, who has made frequent flying trips here. On the present visit he is accompanied by Lieutenant Don R. Terry, another member of the Pensacola squadron. They flew here in a Vought "Corsair," Wasp-powered observation ship.

Jimmy Scales, with more than 800 solo hours to his credit, probably holds the distinction of having had more time behind the stick than any other holder of a private pilot's license in the south. Soloed several weeks ago after a "refresher" course at the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, Scales was checked a day or so ago by Inspector J. B. Jaynes of the department of commerce and found eligible for the private rating, which is as far as he wants to go, inasmuch as his flying will be solely for pleasure. Scales, a member of the air corps during the war, was test pilot in France for a number of months and test flew hundreds of planes, from tiny pursuit ships to ponderous bombers. Though he hadn't touched a stick for more than 10 years, he had no difficulty in regaining his "feel," despite the fact that during war days he had flown virtually nothing but high-powered equipment.

C. H. Dolan, operations manager of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., was in Baltimore Friday on a periodic survey of his company's Atlanta-New York passenger-mail line, and in an advantageous position to dash over to Aberdeen, Md., and take a look at the Condor which caught fire in the air and came down in a field. The plane carried 18 passengers and two pilots, according to news dispatches, and no one was injured. Richard L. Hull, Atlanta traffic manager for E. A. T., was in Washington on business Friday, and Milt Saul, who handles publicity for American Airways, Inc., was at the southern division's headquarters at Dallas.

Boeler Blevins, of the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, who left by train Tuesday night for Hartford, Conn., is scheduled to land at Candler field this afternoon in a Vega, whose engine has undergone a general overhaul at the hands of Pratt & Whitney experts at the factory. The engine's cam reduction gear went haywire during a recent trip to Detroit, and though a satisfactory repair job apparently was done at Louisville, it was decided to land the factory men here to take a look at the Wasp's insides. The Lockheed has been at Hartford for several weeks. Blevins is returning on a recent trip to Detroit, and attended to some Stinson business.

Several visitors landed at Candler field Friday. J. A. Morrison, flying from Spring Hill, Ala., to Jacksonville, Fla., arrived in a Kinner-powered States monoplane. The States, a high-wing affair, with two side-by-side seats, is the first of its type to be seen at the local airport. . . . W. J. Lorey, flying service man for the Kinner Aeroplane & Motor Company, of Glendale, Cal., halted for fuel on a flight from Montgomery, Ala., to Candler field. He was flying a Waco "F," powered with a Kinner B-5 of 125 horsepower. Morrison's plane was serviced at the Curson-Vrignat hangar in which the States at the Blevins Aircraft Corporation.

Official announcement of the resumption of mail service and the inauguration of passenger service to Birmingham on May 30 by American Airways, Inc., was made in Washington Friday by Postmaster-General W. F. Brown. Departures from Birmingham eastbound will be at 1:50 p. m. daily and westbound at 9:44 a. m., it was said. Dedication of Birmingham's new million-dollar airport will be the central feature of a three-day air meet, to begin May 30 and continue through June 1. A number of Atlantans are planning to attend the event, as well as most southern pilots, attracted by the cash prizes which have been posted by the Birmingham dedication committee.

GREETING IS EXTENDED TO MISS WASHINGTON

PARIS, May 15.—(AP)—Miss Anne Madison Washington, great-granddaughter of George Washington, arrived in Paris today to become official hostess at Mount Vernon, the American exhibition at the French international colonial exposition.

Miss Washington was greeted at the station by C. Bascom Slem, American commissioner to the exposition, and representatives of Marshal Lyautey, president of the exposition. In addition to presiding at all ceremonies and fetes at the Mount Vernon building, Miss Washington will supervise interior decorations of the reproduction of Washington's home.

EX-FILM LEADER WILL WED TUESDAY

HONOLULU, T. H., May 15.—(UP)—John McCormick, former Hollywood motion picture executive, and Janet Gattis, who is socially prominent in Washington, D. C., announced plans today for their marriage next Tuesday.

The ceremony will be held at Diamond Head, where McCormick has leased a home. It will be at high noon.

McCormick was notified today by his Los Angeles attorney that the final decree of divorce from Coleman Moore, actress, had been granted. He then obtained the license to marry Miss Gattis.

AGED WOMAN DIES IN FREAK WRECK

CINCINNATI, May 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Earhart, 76, was killed late today, and several persons were injured when the locomotive of a Big Four passenger train, No. 124, enroute from Cincinnati to Columbus, at Lockland, turned over onto Mrs. Earhart's house. The train is believed to have struck a defective rail joint. Leon Lee, fireman, was injured seriously, while Fred Herd, engineer, was cut and bruised. None of the passengers was hurt seriously, according to first reports. All the coaches remained on the track. Frank Earhart, 77, husband of the woman killed, suffered a fractured leg.

Big Four officials immediately began an investigation.

ORATORICAL FINALS WILL BE HELD MAY 23

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Finals in the National Oratorical contest to select this country's representative for the international contest this fall will be held May 23 in Constitution hall.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, explorer, lecturer and educator, will deliver the opening address. Finalists in the national contests will be given a two-and-a-half months' tour of Europe.

9 out of 10 come back for Woco-Pep

TRADE MARK REG.

KING OF MOTOR FUEL

Try it! You are the real judge

TRY one tankful of Woco-Pep and you will never use any other gasoline. Nine out of ten come back for more. There is nothing remotely like Woco-Pep, it sets new heights of motor performance and value. Why? Because the average motorist knows pep when he feels it . . . hill-climbing ability when he sees it . . . power when he experiences it . . . anti-knock quality when the knock is absent, less carbon by the elimination of expensive carbon removal bills and more miles per gallon when he gets it! And finally, he appreciates premium quality performance without the premium price.

Woco-Pep, Dixie's favorite motor fuel, has soared to new heights in a wave of statewide approval. Thousands of motorists are daily changing over to it — for they instantly recognize its superb value. That is why Woco-Pep is a leader in Georgia and throughout Dixie!

It's a premium quality motor fuel at Regular Price—Try It!

You be the judge! Try Woco-Pep. Then you'll know for yourself, and will agree with thousands of its friends that it is far superior to anything you've ever used.

This Local company now offers complete 3-way service for you

Blue-and-White Courtesy Service Stations and authorized dealers now have complete 3-way service for you. First, Woco-Pep, Dixie's own outstanding Motor Fuel. Second, Purol-ETHYL, the new premium quality gasoline. And Third, their quality running mate, Tiolene 100% super-Pennsylvania Motor Oil—the oil that costs less because it lasts longer—all three offering more real value-giving than ever before.

This is consistent with our policies as a local company, run by home folks, interested in everything that is for the progress of this section, to give our customers and friends exactly the quality service and products they request.

WOCO-PEP
Dixie's favorite motor fuel
AT REGULAR PRICE

1 Due to Woco-Pep's tremendous popularity and widespread use in Georgia, we are able to sell this premium quality motor fuel at the same price as ordinary gasoline. Try it once on our recommendation. You will pronounce it the perfect motor fuel.

PUROL-ETHYL
a premium gasoline
plus ETHYL

2 Giant power . . . quick pick-up . . . instant starting . . . excellent mileage. These qualities are refined into the premium grade gasoline to which Ethyl compound is added to make Purol-Ethyl—the red fuel dispensed from white pumps.

TIOLENE
100% Super-Pennsylvania
MOTOR OIL

3 For longer service and safe lubrication, Tiolene has no equal. It gives 1000 miles of safe lubrication where ordinary oils thin out at 500. Right now, with plenty of warm weather ahead, try a filling of the correct summer grade of Tiolene 100% super-Pennsylvania Motor Oil for your car and get a demonstration of the better, lower cost lubrication that Tiolene will give you through the summer.

IMPORTANT!

Since both Woco-Pep and Purol-Ethyl are colored red, they can be identified by the trade-marks on the pump globes. Woco-Pep pumps are yellow. Purol-Ethyl pumps are white.

TRUCK REPRISALS

HATED BY INDIANA

Order Withdrawn Pending "Peace Conference," Looking to Reciprocity.

Indiana authorities Friday withdrew an order to impound all trucks bearing a Georgia license tag pending a "peace conference" looking to a reciprocity agreement between the two states, according to a telegram from Robert H. Hines, manager of the Red Ball Express, to Sumner J. Smith, special attorney for the Georgia public service commission.

Meantime, Red Ball drivers have been instructed to obtain certificates of qualification under the Georgia law, and qualify under the Georgia law.

Commissioner Albert J. Woodruff, of the Georgia commission, was due in Indianapolis Friday to confer with Governor George White, but no advice has been received from him late Friday afternoon.

Threats of arrests and reprisals started ten days ago when the Georgia commission impounded a Red Ball express truck for failure to obtain a certificate of qualification under the Georgia law. The truck was owned by the state of Indiana, also told Georgia officials that reprisals would be extended to privately operated passenger cars.

Information from Indiana on Friday was that this threat had been abandoned. Georgia intends to enforce the motor carrier act, Smith informed May in an exchange of telegrams Friday, and it does not object to that state requiring Georgia trucks to conform to Indiana laws.

The public service commission Friday morning received the following telegram from the Indiana secretary of state:

"The Indiana public service commission does not interfere with interstate traffic of foreign licensed trucks. Unless you immediately release free Red Ball vans now in your custody and allow all other Indiana licensed interstate trucks to operate unimpounded through Georgia, we will be forced by your attitude to start arresting all Georgia trucks effective at noon today."

Replying to this message, Special Attorney Smith said:

"Under the motor carrier act of 1931 it is mandatory on the Georgia public service commission to require all interstate carriers to hire, with certain exceptions, to register, obtain license and file insurance. This commission will enforce the law, copy of which is being mailed you today. This commission has no objections to Georgia trucks complying with Indiana laws."

Shortly after this message had been sent, the commission received from Hines for the Red Ball Express:

"Have induced Indiana authorities to withdraw order against Georgia licensed trucks coming into Indiana. Hopeful of the outcome of conference during next ten days. Meantime we have instructed our man to get certificate there."

MONEY LENDER WINS ASSIGNMENT DECISION

The court of appeals, second division, ruled Friday that failure of an assignor to pay over any portion of his salary assigned to a money lender constitutes a misappropriation and creates a debt that is exempt from a discharge in bankruptcy.

It also held that an error in describing the assigned property does not invalidate the assignment.

The case was that of the Bibb Brokerage Company, of Macon, against Lofton Hubbard, and the opinion differed with an opinion of the first division of the court of appeals on a similar case of Etheridge against Wilson. There was one dissenting opinion in the first division ruling, however.

The defendant in the Hubbard case contended that the assignment described his state of employment incorrectly.

In another opinion the court ruled that while the state highway department is supposed to keep state highways in safe condition, it does not assume the obligation of an insurer.

A new trial was ordered in the suit of J. L. Gassaway against Lincoln county and the state highway department, in which Gassaway was given a judgment of $1,800. Gassaway claimed injuries as the result of driving his car into a collapsed bridge at night.

The case was reversed on instructions of the trial judge that the jury was authorized to find the highway department negligent if roads are not kept in safe condition.

Planning To Call on Mussolini, Mayor Key Sets Sail for Europe

NEW YORK, May 15.—New York said on voyage tonight to Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, and 24 other American mayors who sailed on the Ile de France, bound for Paris as the guests of the French government. Mayor Key was accompanied by his daughter, who will have as her companions on ship three other daughters of mayors.

The Ile de France was decorated with a huge mass of American and French flags as it left port. A dock crowd of 500,000 people saw the mayor sail away.

Before sailing, Mayor Key told the Constitution correspondent that he anticipated a trip through Italy in addition to his visit to France. He expressed a marked inclination to call upon Premier Mussolini, pointing out that he carried with him a letter of introduction to the dictator from the Italian ambassador at Washington. The mayor now plans to return to Atlanta the latter part of June.

Both the mayor and his daughter were received by Mayor Walker at city hall today, along with the rest of the traveling mayoral party. Key joined with the rest in pledging Walker his confidence. Later Miss Key admitted that, while she found Jimmie Walker "very nice and perhaps the best-dressed mayor in the world, there is, of course, but one real mayor for me."

BISHOP CANNON HITS RASKOB'S PROHIBITION STAND

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., tonight protested against what he termed the effort of Alfred E. Smith and Chairman John J. Raskob, of the democratic party, to have the party take a definite stand against prohibition.

Speaking at a conference of the Methodist Protestant church, he said that in some states such as the liquor laws should be undertaken "not as democrats, but as open advocates of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants."

The 18th amendment was not proposed, supported or adopted as a partisan political measure, he said. "Why should it now be insisted that the democratic party endorse the proposed Smith-Raskob amendment?"

He referred to Raskob's proposal of an amendment giving the states authority to determine whether liquor should be manufactured and sold within their borders.

"The issue is clear cut," he continued. "The people of the United States have as a nation put the brand of the criminal upon the traffic in intoxicants for beverage purposes in every state. The Smith-Raskob amendment definitely proposes to remove that criminal brand and to make the traffic lawful in some states, while in others it remains a crime."

"Will the United States remove the brand of the criminal from the liquor traffic? That is the only single question today."

J. T. DE JARNETTE DIES BY OWN HAND

to the city about 25 years ago he was connected with the Campbell Coal Company, being employed in a responsible position in its building and construction department. In 1916 he left the company to set up his own business, the deJarnette Supply Company, Inc., at 1001 Boulevard, N. E.

He was born in Eatonton and reared in Green county. He was a member of the Methodist church, a Mason and a Shriner.

Corner Paul Denehoo was notified and he indicated that an inquest probably will be held this morning.

Mr. deJarnette is survived by his wife; five daughters, Mrs. Thornton Loner, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Mrs. Hines, Athens; Mrs. Mary Kelton Bolton and Miss Katherine deJarnette, of Memphis; one son, John T. deJarnette, Jr.; three sisters, Mrs. Felton Williams, Atlanta; Mrs. T. R. Griffin, Carrollton, and Miss Mary deJarnette, of Decatur, and two brothers, L. B. and J. F. deJarnette, both of Atlanta. The latter is vice president of the Henry Grady Hotel Company and manager of the Henry Grady hotel.

Rites will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill with Dr. Harvey W. Cox officiating. Interment will be in West View.

The following have been selected as pallbearers: T. D. McDonald, Paul S. Etheridge, Carroll Griffin, C. R. Collins, James W. Smith, Dr. J. T. Floyd and Dr. R. E. Newberry. Gate City lodge, F. and A. M., will have charge of the services at the grave.

FURNITURE MAKERS TO HOLD WAGES UP

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 15.—(AP)—The Southern Furniture Manufacturers' Association adopted a resolution today pledging its members to maintain "as far as possible" existing wage scales in the industry, at the closing session of its semi-annual convention.

The convention was attended by more than 50 representatives of the furniture industry throughout the south.

Reports submitted said the business of the industry was about 10 per cent below the level for this time last year, but the opinion was expressed that a turn for the better was to be expected.

Among other actions taken was a reaffirmation of position taken at the last previous meeting opposing the present practice of holding two furniture markets a year. The association favors the holding of only one market.

BANDITS GET $1,500 AT FLETCHER, S. C.

FLETCHER, S. C., May 15.—(AP)—Two bandits held up the bank of Fletcher today, locked the cashier, S. B. Rhodes, in the vault, and escaped with approximately $1,500.

The bandits came into the bank in the early afternoon when all employees were out except Rhodes.

One suddenly pulled a gun and held up the cashier while the other began to gather up the cash. Rhodes grasped with his guard, but was overpowered. The cashier's hand was liberated in the struggle.

After taking all the money they could find, the bandits shut Rhodes in the vault. He was able to sound an alarm in a few minutes and sounded an alarm.

The bandits meanwhile had escaped in an automobile.

GOVERNMENT PROTECTS HOOVER FROM "BITES"

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Governmental agencies have added new weapons in their efforts to keep President Hoover, and other capital residents from being bitten by mosquitoes again.

One is an improved method of spraying all and the other is a fish from the Carolinas, introduced into Rock creek and other pools and streams. The perch, the Gambusia, takes to mosquito larvae as a small boy to ice cream.

At least on one occasion since he has occupied the White House, the president has felt the sting of the pest. The anti-mosquito campaign has been particularly vigorous since then.

Federation To Meet.

Atlanta Federation of Colored Women will hold a meeting at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building to discuss the Morris Brown $100,000 campaign. Students of Morris Brown will furnish the music.

AMERICAN MAYORS SAIL FOR FRANCE

Jimmy Walker Bids Adieu to Executives Bound for Paris Exposition.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—After farewells to their home towns were broadcast over a national radio hookup, the mayors of 25 American cities sailed this afternoon for France.

They are to be guests of the city of Paris and the French government in a reciprocal celebration of the mayors given by their cities to the French trans-Atlantic liners, Costa and Bellone.

Most of the mayors were accompanied by their wives. For a half hour before the French liner Ile de France sailed the mayors took turns speaking over the radio to their constituents.

In France the mayors are to be honored guests at the Paris International Colonial and Overseas Exposition.

The heads of American cities spent a busy few days before sailing. They were feted by civic organizations lined here and there, whirled about New York city to see the sights, and last night were guests of the French line at a dinner aboard the ship.

Mayor Walker—the visiting executive called him "Jimmy" by express permission given Mayor George L. Baker, Portland, Ore., their spokesman—received them at city hall a few hours before they sailed. New York's mayor told them he envied their trip. Someone had told him he might spend the summer months in a city of his choice.

From the American committee for the French exposition the mayors received a bust of the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick. They are to present it to the city of Paris.

CHINA REPORTS 110,000 ILLITERATE CHILDREN

PEIPING.—(UP)—More than 110,000 of the 130,000 children of school age in Peiping cannot read or write, and there are no schools to teach them, Wang Chieh-shan, director of the city educational bureau, declared, in submitting a request for increased funds.

Wang says that it is possible at present to teach only 20,000 boys and girls in Peiping. He admits that the school system is in a state of chaos, the children at once, but asks that a gradual increase in the number of schools be made.

"ALTERATION" LAW PUZZLES CAPITOL

were authorized by the conference committee. Members of the organization committee, which interposed to probe the matter while an investigation began several weeks ago by Senator Reason Paulk, of Ashburn, who was chairman of the engrossing committee, "whether any conference report accompanied the bill when it came over from the house or not. We were all in a hurry to wind the thing up."

"If there is anything wrong with the bill, I know nothing about it. However, I am willing, if invited, to appear before the committee at any time."

Members of the committee, three of whom favored the bill, said that the house, having insisted on the amendments, refused to recede, and that the senate, in order to "get it over with," agreed to the house changes. Many of these, the committee found, have been omitted in the final draft, which is now the printed law, while additions to the bill unauthorized by the legislature have been made.

Application of Law.

One legal authority at the capitol said that if any law is applicable to the case it is probably section 284, of the penal code, which reads:

"If any public officer, or other person, shall steal, embezzle, alter, corrupt, withdraw, falsify or void any record, process, charter, writ, grant, conveyance or contract; or shall knowingly and willingly take off, discharge or conceal any issue, forfeited recognizance, or other forfeiture; or shall forge, deface or falsify any document, or instrument recorded, or any registry, acknowledgment or certificate; or shall alter, deface or falsify any minute, document, book or any proceeding whatever of or belonging to any public office within this state; or if any person shall cause or procure any of the offenses aforesaid to be committed, or to be in anywise concerned therein, he shall be punished by imprisonment and labor in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than three years."

SNOWDEN TO QUIT DUE TO ILL HEALTH

LONDON, May 16.—(Saturday)—(AP)—The Daily Express says Philip Snowden is contemplating an early resignation as chancellor of the exchequer, because of his ill health.

The paper says Snowden's illness is so serious that he probably will be unable to continue his duties as chancellor, and that he himself has been the first to realize this.

The government, however, is loath to lose his services and it is understood that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will recommend that Snowden be made a peer, so that he will go to the house of lords.

The Daily Mail also hints at the possibility of the peerage and says that the chancellor's grandfather, a conservative opponent has initiated a suggestion that his political services should be recognized by an offer of peerage at the earliest possible date.

STEEL EMPLOYEES TERMINATE STRIKE

MANCHESTER, Ohio, May 15.—(AP)—The Empire Steel Corporation and its 1,600 employees reached an agreement today ending a strike which had tied up operations at the plant here for several days.

Meeting virtually all terms laid down by the workers' union, the company agreed, among other things, to rescind a proposed wage cut, announcement of which was the original cause of the walkout.

The men went on strike when notices of a 15 per cent reduction were posted. They said they had been led to believe the cut would be only 10 per cent. The company then offered to eliminate the added 5 per cent, but the workers refused to accept any reduction and drew up a list of other demands to be met before they would return to the mill.

The plant will resume operations tomorrow with the wage scale the same as it was prior to May 1, when the lower rate was announced.

Rumor of Negro's Death Is "Temporarily" Untrue

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP)—An affidavit was made yesterday by Isaac Irvin, a negro ex-soldier, that a report of his death was "temporarily untrue."

He made this remark in applying to a newspaper for aid in getting some of his bonus money he said he couldn't imagine "how such a story got started unless they mean they expect me to be dead before I get that money."

EATON RESIGNS POST AS SECURITIES HEAD

CLEVELAND, May 15.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, who recently resigned as chairman of Continental Shares, Inc., one of the country's largest investment companies, also has resigned the chairmanship of Commonwealth Securities, Inc., another company he founded.

It was announced today by Thomas H. White, president of Commonwealth, who said Eaton would remain on the board.

The resignation without confirmation that Windsor T. White, of Cleveland, who was elected to the Commonwealth board to succeed Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York, would be named the new chairman. Eberstadt resigned yesterday.

Commonwealth was formed in 1923 as an investment company similar to Continental Shares.

Its assets amount to approximately $200,000,000. It carries securities in about 25 concerns, including the larger rubber companies, International Paper & Power, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, the Cliffs Corporation and the Republic Steel Corporation.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Commonwealth Securities, Inc., of which Cyrus S. Eaton was chairman, was formed in 1923 as the William Camp Company, and the name changed to the present title in 1928.

Commonwealth is an investment trust, considerably smaller than Continental Shares, from which Mr. Eaton retired in April.

Commonwealth's holdings, as published as of December 31, like Continental's, include large blocks of stocks in steel, rubber and public utility companies.

Mr. Eaton's retirement from Commonwealth was somewhat surprising to some quarters, for at the time of his retirement from Continental, it had been rumored in financial circles that he might transfer some of his interests to Commonwealth.

NEW YORK BANK PROBE AIMED AT ROOSEVELT

Republican Leaders Will Discuss Proposed Investigation.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(UP)—An investigation of the New York state department of banks, controlled by New York's democratic governor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, through his personal appointment of the commissioner, Joseph A. Broderick, will be discussed by republican party leaders this week-end.

The purpose of such an inquiry, which will be based on action of the state department in the collapse of the City Trust Company, Clarke Bros. and the Bank of United States, will be, political observers say, to defeat any presidential hopes held for Roosevelt whose strength in the middle west and south has alarmed party leaders.

The proposed inquiry, its supporters say, will be as general and as strong in the character of its direction as that now under way into New York city's government, controlled by Tammany Hall.

The Tammany Hall inquiry is directed by Samuel Seabury, independent democrat, enemy of Tammany an personal appointee of Governor Roosevelt. The finance inquiry, some republican leaders hope, will be directed by Colonel William J. Donovan, of Buffalo, trust "buster" of the department of justice in the Coolidge administration and Hoover campaigner, rejected for the attorney generalship after the campaign.

Certain hints charges, based on delayed action after the state banking department learned of conditions in institutions, which later closed their doors with losses to hundreds of thousands of depositors, might, if proved during such an inquiry, result in criminal charges against some state officials.

Roosevelt has supported Broderick in urging approval of amendments to state banking laws which Broderick claimed were needed to prevent recurrence of such closures as that of the Bank of United States, now under investigation.

The inquiry into Broderick's department, the Sun's political writer says, "is designed by republican managers to break down his (Roosevelt's) prestige in both state and nation."

After the Walker-Tammany city government probe was first blocked by William L. Ward, a county republican leader, "the report was," the Sun writer pointed out, "that Washington supplied the power to get action."

The "action" was a reversal in votes by Ward-controlled senators, which would have sustained the inquiry.

Ohio U. D. C. Division Plans Emmett Honor

The Ohio Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy to Day Announced Plans for the Dedication of June 18 of a tablet in memory of Daniel Emmett, author of the song, "Dixie."

The tablet will be placed in front of the Knox county Courthouse building here. Governor George White is expected to be the principal speaker.

Emmett, who was a resident of Mt. Vernon, is buried here.

GUILTY PLEA ENTERED IN LOVE MARKET CASE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 15.—(UP)—John P. Mills, accused with Alexander Paupages and three others on charges involving the morals of two minor girls, appeared unexpectedly in superior court late today and made a guilty plea to two of four counts against him.

Mills denied he had turned state's evidence. However, the district attorney's office had two counts, one of them the most serious, dismissed.

Mills pleaded guilty to charges of contributing to the delinquency of Lydia Nitto and Helen Livingston, 17. Charges of conspiring to contribute to the delinquency of Lydia Nitto and Helen Livingston were dismissed. The latter charge was regarded as the most serious. The two counts to which Mills pleaded guilty are misdemeanors and carry penalties of one year in prison, a fine of $1,000, or both.

with result that Seabury was named to investigate the entire city government.

"The reason for Washington's deep interest in a New York investigation is obvious," the writer said.

W. Kingsland Macy, state republican chairman, credited with forcing through the investigation of Tammany by Roosevelt-appointed Tammany enemy, Seabury, denied the proposed bank department inquiry would be political in purpose. He will discuss it and 20 other state investigations continued this year during a conference at his home Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, the Tammany fight to block the Seabury inquiry by preventing secret hearings collapsed when the investigating committee, on a strictly party vote, defeated all minority proposals.

Sub-committees or one member of the whole committee will be permitted to examine witnesses. Tammany leaders held such hearings would enable republicans to examine publicly only witnesses against Tammany. They objected and now they plan a court fight to sustain their objections.

WORLD PACT IS URGED TO BAR WAR PROFITS

Missourian Advocates Manufacture of Munitions Only by Governments.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—An international agreement that all munitions of war be manufactured by governments instead of private concerns was recommended to the war policies commission today by former Representative Barthold, of Missouri, as a means of taking the profit out of war.

Barthold also recommended that the United States proclaim to the world it would not go to war and suspend all preparations for a conflict independently, if necessary, of other governments.

He further proposed an international agreement to forbid lending money to belligerents and to provide such low prices for food and other war necessities that to furnish them would become "a patriotic duty rather than a source of profit."

The commission was urged by the former representative to recommend the adoption of a general arbitration treaty to support the Kellogg peace pact by providing machinery for settling international disputes through pacific means.

Barthold contended that nations do not want war and have violated peace agreements in the past because of the influence of "so-called war profiteers, that is the munition makers, big naval contractors, food purveyors and certain financial interests to all of whom war means a golden harvest."

Periodical Pains Relieved In 3 Minutes

Month after month some women still suffer needless pain, but those who know simply go to a drug store or soda fount, get a package or dose of "B-C" and get perfect relief in 3 minutes, continuing their duties in pain-free, easy comfort.

"B-C" is the formula of two North Carolina druggists, contains several ingredients that function together for the relief of headache, neuralgia and periodical pains, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours.

"B-C" stops the pain, quiets the nerves, is perfectly harmless. No other preparation like it. Nothing else gives such prompt relief. Ask your druggist, he knows.—(adv.)

Goes places and does things... that's Chesterfield. The same good-tasting cigarette wherever smokers light up. For what you taste in Chesterfield is the aroma and flavor of milder, better tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco. That's why smokers find the change to Chesterfield a real change.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

RECEIVER TESTIFIES IN TRIAL OF BANKER

$195,000 of Alleged 'Sham' Notes Due Sandersville Bank, Is Claim.

MACON, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Individuals, corporations and partnerships which are claimed to be the interests of L. B. Holt, former president of the defunct First National Bank of Sandersville, owed the institution $195,000, or 45 per cent of the bank's bills receivable, at the suspension of business March 14, 1929, W. K. Howard, receiver, told a jury in United States district court here Friday.

Mr. Howard said he had collected $37,270.11, or approximately 20 per cent of the amount, since the bank closed by disposing of security given. The bank still holds security against the remaining $161,579.18 which the receiver said he valued at $23,329.25. A total of $138,549.93 is said by Mr. Howard to be worthless.

The receiver was testifying against Mr. Holt and his son, Floyd L. Holt, on the fifth day of their trial here for alleged violation of the national banking act.

United States Attorney W. A. Bootle, has charged that the corporation and partnerships owing the bank large sums of money were "sham," and used by the Holts to conceal individual abstractions of money.

The elder Holt and his son have denied the charges that they organized "sham" corporations to conceal money, and contend that obligations charged to them in the government's testimony are not properly charged. Loans were made in the regular course of the banking business, they say.

The entire amount of the bank's bills receivable, Mr. Howard said, was $444,854.86, when its business was suspended. Eliminating $119,141.29 alleged to be obligations of the Holts, all other obligations total approximately $325,713.57. Of this amount, $104,000, or approximately 42 per cent, has been collected.

Mr. Howard was the last witness to take the stand this afternoon before court was recessed shortly after 6 o'clock until 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning. The jury will be required to remain together until the weekend, but Judge Bascom S. Deaver is allowing them to go about provided they remain in a body. They have attended theaters nearly every night during this week.

H. T. Amason, Atlanta, auditor, referring to the C. G. Rawlings estate, said that for his trusteeship, L. B. Holt received in 1928 a salary of $10,000 for the sale of $200,000 of notes and $10,000 annually for a salary.

Mr. Amason explained that because of the inadequacy of the records, it was necessary for him to confer with the Holts regarding a number of the items, appraisals and other matters.

The estate's audit figures for 1928 showed a net worth of $288,639.12. The net loss from operations in 1928 was $110,191.73, he said.

COURT ANNULS VOWS IN SPITE MARRIAGE

BALTIMORE, Md., May 15.—(AP)—Howard Sheltou's testimony that his marriage at Alexandria, Va., last January 8 was a white affair and kisses won him an annulment in circuit court today.

He said he and his bride separated on their return to Baltimore because he did not go to work. He was ordered to meet her the next evening.

"I waited for more than two hours and she failed to show up," Sheltou related. "It was two days before I saw her and then she explained: 'I only married you to show people how easily I could get you and to prove to society I was a good girl married, too. If you didn't know any better than to wait two hours it served you right.'"

YOUTH IS INDICTED IN WIDOW'S MURDER

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 15.—(AP)—Russell B. Noble, 17, was indicted today for the murder of Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, wealthy Haverhill widow.

One of three indictments returned by an Essex county grand jury charged the youth with the murder of Mrs. Ellis, who was beaten to death in a midnight attack in her bedroom February 23. Another indictment charged him with assault to murder and the third with breaking and entering.

INDEPENDENCE GROUP
ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—(AP)—Carl Magnus Knudsen, president of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence at the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the society in Independence hall today.

Other officers elected include Miss Rowena Hudgins, Washington, D. C.; Dr. George W. Williams, D. C.; Dr. George W. Williams, D. C.; Dr. George W. Williams, D. C.

It was decided that the board of the society will meet at the sequentennial exposition to be held at Yorktown from October 16 to 19.

Georgia Kidnaping Laid to Florida Man

TAMPA, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—W. F. "Bill" Fisher, 27, of Tampa, arrested here Friday, on a charge of kidnaping Kirby Suit, 17, of Lafayette, Ga., held without bond.

He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the girl's father, J. I. Suit, farmer of Walker county, who brought the warrant here in spite of his daughter's refusal to return with his daughter.

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW HELPS IN MARIETTA

MARIETTA, Ga., May 15.—Hundreds of visitors attended the annual flower show at the Country Club here Friday.

The Marietta Garden Club, with Mrs. D. C. Cole as president; the Laurel Garden Club, Mrs. Leon Gilbert, president; and the Flower Garden Club, Mrs. Herbert Wallace, president, all of this city, sponsored the show, in which all leading flower growers here participated.

The show was effectively arranged, with exhibitors' group carrying their names and listing the gardens from which the flowers were taken. Judges of the contest were Mrs. J. C. Erwin and Mrs. Evan P. Howell, both of Atlanta, and Mrs. Fletcher Pearson, Crown, of College Park.

Mrs. J. J. Daniel was awarded the sweepstakes blue ribbon for her display, composed of a bed of pink snapdragons.

One of the features of the show was a miniature garden, built in the central clubhouse by the Laurel Garden Club, and was a faithful replica of a real garden, even to tiny figures being scattered about on benches.

A room was devoted to "shadow box" displays, and a number of beautiful ones were on display. The display was composed of the hundreds who passed through.

More than 150 exhibitions were on display, including roses, peonies, irises, perennials and annuals being mixed in colorful profusion.

SITE IS PURCHASED FOR WAYCROSS CHURCH

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 15.—The Parkside Presbyterian church, of which the Rev. M. P. Cain is pastor, announces today the purchase of a site for their new church building, extending over a tract of 100 acres.

The location is at the corner of Perham and Isabella streets, in the western section of the city, several blocks from the temporary church building which they now occupy.

Plans now are being drawn and construction will be started at an early date, the building to be pressed into service as soon as work has progressed to a sufficient point to permit the use of the structure.

J. B. McDaniel is chairman of the building committee, other members including B. F. Hearn and George Lunn.

PRISON FARM GROUP VISITS WORTH COUNTY

ALBANY, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—The special legislative committee assigned to inspection of proposed sites for the new state prison farm left here Friday for Worth county. The committee spent three days here.

The committee members will return to their homes after inspection of sites in Worth county. Chairman Vivian M. Stanley said, and reassemble at Macon Monday night to inspect proposed sites in Houston county and nearby.

Chairman Stanley, who also is a member of the state prison board, said Friday that no appointment will be made for the committee to fill the vacancy in the inspection force caused by the death of W. E. Harvin, of Edison. Mr. R. Thornton, transfer officer of the state prison board, will be assigned to the duties formerly performed by Mr. Harvin in the interest of economy, the chairman said.

State Deaths And Funerals

WILLIAM ROBERT HADLEY.—SALISBURY, W. Va., May 15.—Robert Hadley, 50 years of age, died at his home here today. He was survived by two daughters, Mrs. Herbert Colley and Miss R. Hadley; two sons, Mrs. George Jones, of Macon, and Charles Teel, of Harris county; a brother, Ernest Hadley, of Chicago; and a number of nieces and nephews. Funeral rites were held from the home Friday and interment was in the Oaklawn cemetery.

MRS. G. W. PRITCHETT.—MEDFORD, Ga., May 15.—Last rites for Mrs. G. W. Pritchett were held from the home here today. She was a member of the First Baptist church. Mrs. Pritchett was a resident of Henry county for many years. She was ill for several months. She is survived by her husband, G. W. Pritchett; three daughters, Mrs. J. H. Love, of Macon, and Miss Little Pritchett; four sons, W. R. Pritchett, Jr., of Pritchett, G. W. Pritchett, Jr., of W. Wood, Mrs. Joe Ford and Mrs. Foster; three brothers, Green Mitchell, A. N. Mitchell and Zach Mitchell, all of Henry county.

Barnett, chairman of the state highway board, and Gordon Saussy, mayor of Savannah.

FORMER TECH STAR IS BURIED AT SPARTA

SPARTA, Ga., May 15.—Services for Marshall Shorty Guill, 35, former Georgia Tech football star and all-Southern quarterback on the famous team of 1917, were held here Friday morning at 11 o'clock. The services, held at the home, were conducted by Dr. Rembert G. Smith, pastor of the Methodist church, assisted by other local ministers.

Mr. Guill met a tragic death in an automobile wreck near Guilford, Ga., last Monday night. He was one of the most popular young men of this city and his untimely death cast a pall of gloom over the entire community. Every business house in the city was closed during the funeral in respect to the young man.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Guill; one brother, Richard A. Guill, of Philadelphia, Pa.; five sisters, Mrs. G. Lee Dickens, of this city; Mrs. S. L. Hill, of Atlanta; Miss Edith Guill, of Athens; Miss Doris Guill, of Tate, and Miss Florence Guill, of Buford, besides numerous other relatives here.

damaged in his profession" and charged through the "innuendoes" of the plaintiffs, with "being unfit to preach" because they had "alleged he would pay for publicity and would defame a brother churchman."

While the case is based on the fact that Dr. Smith was facing the complaints made against him by Dr. Smith at the general conference held at Dallas in 1930, the petition alleges that the defendants "uttered and spoke and caused to be printed in every large daily newspaper in the United States defamatory remarks concerning the petitioner, thus injuring him in his profession. It predicates the charges on a purported interview given by P. Bolton, Associated Press writer, at the convention.

Count one of each of the indictments is based on slander and defamation and asks $25,000 for that count, and five counts of slander and defamation and asks an additional $25,000 for that count, making a total of $1,250,000 against each of the defendants. The defendants are alleged to have been interviewed jointly and the report was carried with their joint and several approval, according to Harrelson, Dr. Smith's attorney.

The petition charged that both the bishops asked that their names not be used in the interview, according to the report, but set out in the report of the interview that Dr. Smith (meaning the plaintiff) "would have given many thousands of dollars for the publicity which he was given free of charge," meaning that the complaints which petitioner filed against the bishops gave him publicity.

Another paragraph charges that the defendants expressed the following opinion concerning the charges: "Would not be considered seriously either by the committee (investigating the charges) on episcopacy or by the general conference." In another section it is alleged the

Hoynes Will Accept Savannah Mayorship

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Thomas M. Hoynes, former mayor of Savannah, told a delegation of citizens who called on him Friday that he would accept a call to the mayorship of Savannah.

He is expected to be elected formally at a meeting of the city council Wednesday night when the resignation of Mayor Gordon Saussy, who is a candidate for ordinary of Chatham county, will be received and acted upon.

SWAINSBORO OFFICERS PROBE PYRE DEATH

SWAINSBORO, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Special Officer Lee, of the Columbus (Ga.) police force, was here Friday to examine fingerprints on the gun and slot machines taken from the filling station of Ellis McBride, slain operator of the station.

McBride's body, burned almost beyond recognition, was found in the members of his filling station early Thursday. Officers believe he was slain and the building set afire to cover up the crime.

Twenty negro members of a paving crew are under arrest in the case. Officers said Will Reese and Joe Green, two of the negroes, were suspected of the crime but they believed others were involved.

Sheriff's officers said McBride, a World War veteran, was known to have carried the gun and have several hundred dollars on his person. Judge Howard has continued the inquiry begun yesterday until further evidence has been obtained.

Deputy Sheriff Bell and Officer Lee left for Macon Friday night where fingerprints on the gun and slot machines will be photographed.

GEORGIA NEGRO SLAIN RESISTING ARREST

BLAKELY, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Sheriff's officers Friday killed Oscar King, negro, during an exchange of shots, when King resisted arrest for the slaying earlier in the day of Tim Shorter, another negro.

King, Sheriff Sid Howell said, killed Shorter with one stroke of a razor when Shorter discovered him in his home. Shorter's head was almost severed from his body.

The killing of Shorter, the sheriff said, was the climax of ill feeling between the negroes that had existed for some time. Sheriff Howell said he found King at the home of his father-in-law several hours after the slaying of Shorter and that King not only resisted arrest but fired on his officers, narrowly missing the sheriff.

Officers returned the fire and King was shot to death. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable killing in the death of King.

BROOKS SEEKS ACTION ON SCHOOL FUNDS DUE

QUITMAN, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—The Brooks county grand jury, in its report, has urged the state legislature to take action on the school fund measures to pay what is due the schools. The report says failure to meet this "obligation" is jeopardizing the efficiency of the schools.

The report said $55,000 is due Brooks county schools. The report was prepared after the grand jury read the annual report of County Superintendent W. J. Cooley, saying that $84,144 out of every $100 of school funds went to teachers' salaries and other actual expenses of operating schools, while $5,96 went to overhead and administrative costs. The grand jury praised the overhauled cost which it described as low.

EISENBERG ELECTED BY DENTAL SOCIETY

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Dr. Semon Eisenberg was elected president of the First District Dental Society at the annual meeting here today.

Dr. Tiffany Wilson was chosen vice president; Dr. T. A. Grant was re-elected secretary and treasurer, and Dr. F. J. Thomas was named delegate to the state society convention in Atlanta, June 10, 11 and 12. A vacancy in the council caused by the expiration of the term of Dr. E. N. Brown, Statesboro, was filled by electing Dr. R. L. Gann, Savannah, for a three-year term.

A resolution was passed extending an invitation to the state society to meet in Savannah in 1932.

CONDITIONS IN SOUTH LAUDED BY ATLANTAN

Industrial Status Better Than Most Sections, Says Louisa Fitzsimmons.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Miss Louisa Fitzsimmons, Atlanta director of the children's division of Georgia, declared at a meeting of the Savannah Welfare Society that the south is infinitely better off than other sections where industrial conditions were different Friday.

Particularly is this true, she said, in the cases where a town or city has only one large industry, which was forced to cut down its employees' list during the past winter and so impoverished a large number of people in the community.

Among the bills to be presented the next legislature looking toward welfare, she declared, were the following: An old age pension; intelligent control and segregation of the feeble-minded; home for delinquent children; adequate provisions for dependent and neglected children; control of night work for women and children; a fund for the care of crippled and disabled children who must be removed from their own to some other locality, and finally provisions for the guarantee of an education for every child.

The local society elected its board of directors. H. B. Skeels is president and Miss Eloise Cleveland is executive secretary.

MACON METHODISTS APPOINT DELEGATES

PERRY, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—The Macon district conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, closed a two-day session Friday, selecting Jeffersonville, Ga., for the next annual meeting.

Seventeen lay delegates and five alternates were also chosen to the annual South Georgia conference which is to be held in Savannah in November, as follows: C. L. Shepard, Fort Valley; W. L. Sutton, Warren Roberts, R. F. Burden, F. C. Benson, L. A. Miller, W. L. Harris, W. E. Burns, W. G. Jackson, and R. A. Bolinger, all of Macon; S. A. Nunn and H. T. Houser, Perry; W. M. Whitaker, Jeffersonville; P. B. Murph, Marshallville; J. G. Denard, Gordon; L. D. Davis, Irwinton, and W. E. Vincent, Byron.

Alternates chosen to the Savannah conference are: J. T. Ellis, Macon; A. L. Luce, Fort Valley; W. A. Peavy, Byron; S. F. Andrews, Macon; and A. H. Edwards, Marshallville.

STATE GOVERNMENT PROPOSALS DISCUSSED

MACON, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Proposed changes in the state government as embodied in the draft of a new constitution, submitted early this week to the institute of public affairs of the University of Georgia, were discussed in a short address to the Macon Civitan Club Friday by Pope F. Brock, local attorney.

Mr. Brock, a member of the club, is a member of the institute's committee which drafted the proposed instrument. He did not discuss each change, but took up the major items. There will be only minor changes, he said, in the bill of rights. They will be directed to its simplification.

Radical changes are proposed in the structure of the government, with the national government as a model, he said. Because the chief executive is the only state officer elected on public issues, the proposed new constitution would give him an appointive power over the governmental departments, and make him otherwise "the head of the government."

Mr. Brock declared that no governor since Hoke Smith has been able, through his limited powers, to put over any major program of public interest.

POLICE IN FOLKSTON SEIZE LIQUOR CAR

FOLKSTON, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—A truck loaded with 2,200 quarts of whisky, a pilot car and three men were captured by J. H. Barnes, chief of police, and J. O. Sikes, officer, just outside the Folkston city limits Friday after a chase. Another pilot car, the police said, escaped.

The liquor is valued at $15,000. Bill Franklin and Charlie Dean, who occupied the pilot car, and Sam Dendine, the truck driver, were arrested.

The effect that negotiations were made with the Woodall company in private, and not through sealed bids or, as the state law provides, by public outcry before the doors of the courthouse.

Appended to the petition and marked "Exhibit A" is the contract entered into with the Woodall company. It does not specify the amount of money to be paid by the county in the project, but instead makes the contract between the state highway board and Hall county the contract by which the project shall be governed.

The temporary restraining order affects, in addition to the county board of commissioners of roads and revenues, also Hall county and Percy Davis and W. T. Martin, the latter two being the "majority of the county commissioners" referred to in the petition. The other commissioners, Rafe Banks, himself, as a taxpayer being one of the signers of the petition.

Assailing the policy of the majority of the board of county commissioners, an editorial in the Gainesville Eagle says: "The Eagle has been notified that it may be illegal to let such a contract without competitive bidding. From Captain J. W. Barnett, chairman of the board, the policy of the board to let no contracts without such a procedure, and, furthermore, that he suggested the local commissioners follow the same policy."

Church" was issued early last year, at which time Mr. Smith was pastor at Washington, Wilkes county, Georgia. For a time he served as a professor at Emory University, was awarded an A. B. degree at that institution, then Emory College, Oxford, in 1897. The university since has been moved to Atlanta. He was awarded a D. D. degree at the University of Wesleyan University in 1912.

Bishop Moore has long been one of the leaders of southern Methodism. He was awarded a D. D. degree at Lebanon in 1887, took the Ph. D. and D. D. degrees at Yale and studied at Heidelberg and Leipzig. He is the author of several books. He was elected bishop in May, 1918.

Bishop Mouzon was awarded an A. B. degree at Wofford College; D. D. at Southwestern University and the LL. D. at the same institution. He was raised to the bishop's position in May, 1910. He also is a widely known author.

GANDHI WILL ATTEND LONDON ROUND TABLE

SIMLA, India, May 15.—(AP)—In an hour's interview with Lord Willington today, Mahatma Gandhi is understood to have told the viceroy he was prepared to leave for the second round-table conference in London at any time.

Nationalist leader, who boycotted the first round-table meeting, was reported to have said he feared delay in holding the forthcoming conference would give extremists in India and England an opportunity to wreck the present truce and throw India into a renewed ferment.

Professor Drowns

MADISON, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—After clinging nearly two hours to a capsize canoe, Sterling A. Leonard, 43, University of Wisconsin English professor, was drowned tonight. His companion, I. A. Richards, 38, professor and lecturer at Cambridge University, England, was rescued in an exhausted condition.

SCOUT EXECUTIVES
PLAN CONFERENCECamp Specialization To
Be Discussed at Session
Over Week-End.

A conference treating with camp specialization for Georgia Scout executives and volunteer leaders will be held this week-end at the Bert Adams Boy Scout camp under the auspices of sixth regional office, of which Kenneth G. Bentz is head.

It is planned that the scout executives of Georgia and the volunteer leaders will constitute the faculty in various specialization courses in scouting. Interested throughout the activities will be addressed pertinent to the program and the administration of scouting. About 125 men have signified their intention to be present at the conference, of whom 15 are professional leaders in the state. Included in this number are J. Rucker Newberry, of Augusta; Tom Renshaw, of Gainesville; W. H. Moler, of Griffin; V. Carl Sullivan, of Savannah; Fred Stelling, of Augusta; and Grady Bradshaw, of West Point.

Starting at noon on Friday and running through noon today, a seminar is being held, featuring talks by Professors E. H. Reese and S. G. Brinkley, of Emory University, as well as by various executives. Religious services will be conducted Sunday morning by the Rev. Horace L. Turner, of the Covenant Presbyterian church. The program for the conference, including the various courses for the week-end, will be featured by the first camp session from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, with courses in Indian lore, map-making, life saving, trees, plants and shrubs, campcraft, sea scouting and troop projects.

POPE ASKS MORE
WAGES FOR LABOR

very of the publication of Pope Leo's encyclical rerum novarum.

"He decided to make observance of this anniversary the occasion of the announcement of a new encyclical on this same subject. In this new papal document his holiness will explain to the members of the church and the world at large an ample program which still remains to be accomplished before the courageous and splendid initiatives of Pope Leo XIII can be said to have been completely attained their fruition.

"In anticipation of the publication of this new encyclical the father has given an outline of its contents to those of his children who from all parts of the world have come to Rome in pilgrimage on this occasion to gather together in the home of the father of all the faithful which is also their home, for the father's home is always the home of his children.

"These pilgrims are representatives of both laborers and of capitalists of industry and by their presence they indicate the gratitude of both laborers and employers to the vicar of Christ for enunciation of those principles, the observance of which will ensure the welfare of all.

"Recalls Wide Acclaim.

"The encyclical takes its title, 'Quadragesimo Anno,' which means in the fortieth year from its first two words that appropriately indicate the anniversary which occasions its publication. The encyclical commends by recalling the necessity and appropriateness of the encyclical rerum novarum which means 'new things,' 40 years ago. This necessity and appropriateness are clearly evidenced by the universal acclaim which greeted the encyclical at the time of its publication and by the continuous and deservedly held and is still held, being universally regarded as a providential document constituting a blessing bestowed by God not only upon his church but upon all mankind.

"The new encyclical quadragesimo anno, in the fortieth year will develop three points. The Holy Father says that in the first place the new encyclical will enumerate the foremost among the many nestable benefits which have resulted from the encyclical rerum novarum. These are, for example, the establishment of a solid foundation and the imparting of an efficacious impulse to the development of sociology and economics according to Catholic principles; promoting of an ever more thorough and profound instruction and the formation of workingmen in religious, moral and social subjects, thus rendering them more conscious of their dignity as men and as Christians; and the safeguarding of the moral and economic interests of their classes with the knowledge and competence and prudence thus becoming, in such movements, the leaders of their fellows. Other examples of the beneficent results of the publication of the encyclical rerum novarum were the gradual substitution of a new social policy more favorable to justice in place of the formerly supreme liberalism and the resolute and firm asserting of the right possessed by workingmen to form associations for mutual aid and legitimate defense of their common interests and the firm liberalism was endeavoring to impede by an unjust abuse of power.

"The encyclical vindicates the full

Pessimism Carried Too Far,
Says New York Cotton Man

Homer W. Orvis, in charge of the cotton department of Orvis Brothers, New York brokerage house, is shown here with Mrs. Orvis shortly after their arrival in Atlanta Friday. Mr. Orvis, on a tour of the cotton states, believes that pessimism has been carried too far and that prosperity is definitely on its way back.

"Pessimism in 1931, in common with optimism in 1929, is being carried too far," said Homer W. Orvis, in charge of the cotton department of Orvis Brothers, New York brokerage house, in which he is a partner. "Markets, whether produce, money or stock, always have been the meeting place of extremists," he said, "and whereas the boom years apparently brought out all the optimists in the country, the nation is in the hands of rabid pessimists today."

Mr. Orvis, who, with Mrs. Orvis, arrived at the Atlanta Billmore for a visit of several days, is on the final stage of a trip through the south, a trip on which he has covered about 3,000 miles and has contacted every point of cotton activity in the section. With his attendance at the Texas Cotton Association convention in Dallas, March 19, he has motored throughout the cotton area, talking to the most prominent manufacturers, the smallest independent negro planters, and the wide range of people in between. His conclusions are that the possibility of a healthy upturn in cotton prices is quite apt to be noticed in the near future.

"Summer comes in on fertilizer used in the eastern sector, an 8 to 10 per cent general cut in acreage planted, a wet May, cool nights, and with the possibility of a wet July, resumption of boll weevil ravages, and an increase in consumption, the outlook for a profitable return on the cotton actually brought to market is far from right of the church and of its head to intervene in social problems insofar as these problems fall under the moral and evangelical law.

Speaking of the relations between capital and labor the holy father recalls that neither has the right to demand for itself alone all the profits of their mutual collaboration.

"Unjust Disproportion." "In the past there has been, beyond question, an excessive and unjust disproportion of the commodities of life between capital and labor, for on the one hand immense riches are accumulating in the hands of a few while on the other the proletariat have nothing of their own save their hands and the sweat of their brow," the text says. "The differences in social conditions in the human family must not and cannot ever be abolished but on the other hand the condition of the proletariat worker cannot be the normal condition of the bulk of mankind. It is essential that the proletariat be enabled gradually to obtain some of the advantages enjoyed by proprietors.

"In the present order this can be accomplished only by a fair and just wage. Wages therefore must be such as really to satisfy the legitimate requirements of an honest working man, not only for his person but also for his family, and to make it possible for him to improve his condition within the limits above described."

Finally, the holy father states a general glance at the actual state of the modern economic world. He does not condemn it as evil in itself but he does not fail to recognize that it is seriously warped and burdened with grave abuses. The return to sane principles of Christian social philosophy, and their practical application to capital, to labor, and to the relations between the two is advanced as a remedy for the social disorder of today.

Points Out Socialism Split.

Touching upon the split the holy father points out its split into two divisions. The first, he says, has taken the name of communism and it is well known that its teachings can in no wise be reconciled with the doctrines of the church.

The other, which continues to be known as socialism, has frequently and notably mitigated its program. In many points it has approached, now more, now less, so close to Catholic

Bishop Wilbur P. Thickfield is in the city to attend the annual meeting of the board of trustees of Gammon Theological Seminary, of which he is the chairman. On Sunday at 11 a. m. he will preach at Central Baptist church, 111 Mitchell street. Bishop Thickfield was the first president of Gammon Seminary from 1883 to 1900, and has been closely identified with the institution for nearly half a century.

Revival services will open at the Little Five Points Baptist church Sunday, and will continue through May 31. The Rev. Samuel A. Cowan, pastor, will conduct all services. Sunday services will be held in the Joseph C. Greenfield Masonic temple, with night services in the Centenary Protestant Methodist church, Moreland and Austin avenues.

Harry Von Bruch and Walter MacDonald will hold two evangelistic services Sunday, preaching on the topic, "The Christian's Calling," at 3 o'clock and "The Sign Board Sermon" at 7:30 o'clock at the Dixie Gospel tent, Peachtree and Linden streets. The topic tonight will be "Mac's Favorite Sermon."

Meeting of the Center Hill Safety and Civic League, regularly held each Saturday, will be postponed for two weeks due to conflicting programs on the next two Saturdays. Tonight the show, "Mid-Summer Eve," to be presented at 7:30 o'clock at the school-house, will draw many of the members of the league. The coming Saturday is election day. The next meeting will be May 30.

Rev. Lyle G. Kilvington, of Saint Paul's Episcopal church, Chatham square, will preach the sermon for the Saint Luke's Episcopal church here Sunday morning. A member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Nu fraternities, Mr. Kilvington is a graduate of Vanderbilt University, and was at one time associate headmaster of the Ford-Kilvington Boys' school in Memphis.

W. B. Spann will address the meeting of the Lutheran Brotherhood of the Church of the Redeemer Monday evening on "The Business of Banking." Mr. Spann is vice president of the Citizens & Southern National bank. Supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. William B. Ahlgren.

Rev. and Mrs. M. Luther Stimson, for many years residents of Atlanta, arrived at their home at 781 Clement drive Friday from their winter home in Coral Gables, The Rev. and Mrs. W. T. McElreath, who have been living in Atlanta about two months, are staying at the Cox-Carlton hotel. The United Congregational church will welcome the Rev. and Mrs. Stimson at the morning service of the Atlanta Women's Club Sunday.

A rare Indian calumet pipe which was plowed up on the farm of George Graf, near Atlanta, is on exhibition at the Emory University museum. The pipe, which is the real "peace pipe" of fame, is carved from grayish rock instead of from clay, and is in the form of a bird. It was found in the furrow, the bowl placed in a hollow of the bird's back.

Summer courses at the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression are being planned, according to Dr. James F. Watson, president of the school. The courses will be in voice, and its application in speaking, conversing, dictating, public reading, entertaining, singing, storytelling, play production and English. Another course planned for teachers will cover education, psychology, speech production and correction, social poise and health.

Judge Orville A. Park will speak to the class of the Georgia Institute of Technology at the government at Emory University, and all the members of the student body are invited. The talk will be held in the library 213.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, will speak at the annual banquet of the Greek Guild, which will be held soon at the Candler hotel, according to an announcement by Wiley Tucker, president of the organization. The banquet will be held at the Candler hotel, and students of Greek at Agnes Scott College have been invited to attend.

Bill Lambright has been elected president of the Emory Players to succeed Francis Mitchell. Other officers elected were: Foster Fitz Simons, vice president; Melissa Jack, secretary, and Albert Ashley, treasurer. Dr. Thomas H. English remains director of the players.

Eight student leaders were tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, for recognition of ability and leadership at Emory University Friday morning. They were Claude Quillian, Thomas McElreath, Henry Lammie, Bowen, Maxey Redick Hall, Edward B. Brown, William Hunter, Frank Settle and Tigner Emmett Thrasher.

Initiation of four new members into Phi Sigma, honorary biology fraternity, will take place at Emory University. The four new members will be Travis Stubbs, Bill Edwards, Louise Toepel and George Williams.

Bill Hunter was elected head of the All-Emory party at a meeting of the executive body of the Sigma Pi house two weeks ago, it was learned Friday. He will succeed Ed Vison, who was the pilot during the current political campaigns.

A. L. Stearns, 36, Friday was given four to seven years by Judge C. H. Howell under instructions from a robbery charge. Stearns, who was charged with taking $20,300 from L. C. Perdue at a Lee street filling station, was recommended by Perdue when he was stopped at the victim's College Park filling station, and was taken in custody, it was said.

Sidney McLin, 23, soldier, Friday was given a year and a day at the Chillicothe, Ohio, reformatory by Federal Judge J. Edgar Howard on a plea of guilty to transporting a stolen car from Atlanta to New York. A co-defendant, Charles Reid, was given a similar sentence Wednesday.

Leonard Davis was given a year and a day in the penitentiary, and Lewis Turner was given 18 months Friday when they pleaded guilty in federal court to a charge of transporting a stolen car from Atlanta to Elizabethtown, Tenn.

H. W. Cowan Friday was fined $25 by Judge Jesse Wood in criminal court of Atlanta on a charge of operating a car with a 50c license tag. This was the first case in Judge Wood's court for operating a car in 1931 with a 1930 tag, it was said.

Fulton county taxpayers must file their 1931 state and county returns today or be marked up as delinquents, Edwin F. Johnson, tax receiver, announced Friday. The second extension of time expires today, and Mr. Johnson said the deadline today is final. More than 2,000 returns are missing.

Confederate veterans of Georgia Friday were paid at the rate of $30 a month as of May 1, officials an-

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Little change occurred today in the character of trading in the security markets.

Selling of stocks was concentrated against United States Steel, American Can, General Motors, American Telephone and the rails, leaving an impression of acute weakness which, however, was not so apparent in many prominent issues.

Some of the more active issues were bonds, but these, too, showed strength held for the gilt edge obligations.

Trading in stocks expanded to 2,400,000 shares, the largest turnover in a week. Final prices ranged 1.7 lower, bringing the price index of 90 representative shares to 114.7, compared with the year's low of 114.1.

United States Steel common closed at 103 1/4, off 2 1/8. American Can was 105 1/2, off 1 1/2. General Motors, 102 3/4, off 1 1/2. American Telephone dropped to 176 1/8, off 1 1/2.

But its extreme decline of 5 1/2 was reduced to 7 1/2. General Motors, selling ex-dividend, broke below 40 before steadying and was down 1 1/2 on the day. Rails, with few exceptions, touched new lows. There were scattered recoveries, notably in New York Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio.

Chemicals were weak most of the day. Oils traded inconspicuously. Standard of New Jersey, which reported 1930 earnings equivalent to $1.65 a share against $1.75 in 1929, more than made up the dividend which was taken from the price of the stock today. Metals, with the exception of International Nickel, which made a new low, were quiet. Auburn had a wide break but got back most of its loss.

Two developments tending to discourage foreign funds from the market came to light during the day. One was a reduction in the federal reserve bank's buying rate for foreign currencies, although it has been helpful to the interest rate allowed by clearing houses on foreign time deposits.

Seasonal influences were at work in business during the week, according to the commercial reviews, and some contraction was noted. Bradstreet's said the weather had retarded retail trade, although it has been helpful to crops. Dun's commodity price index showed more declines than advances, with food prices working higher.

The same review predicted a further decrease in business failures, with a decrease in business failures, with a decrease in business failures.

Cotton was heavy, July breaking more than $3 a bale under the top of new week's advance. All active months were quiet. Auburn had a touched new seasonal lows, and final prices were near the bottom, representing net losses of 9 to 14 points. What was firm.

Corn, however, sagged fractionally. Aside from the improvement in sterling and firmness in Latin American, foreign exchanges varied slightly.

ATLANTA A. R. ELECTS OFFICERS AT CRAIGIE HOUSE

Mrs. Thomas Mell Elected
Regent of Patriotic Body

Mrs. Thomas Coke Mell was elected regent of Atlanta Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, at the annual meeting held yesterday at Craigie House, on Piedmont avenue, with Mrs. E. A. Thomas in the chair. The corps of officers elected to serve with Mrs. Mell were Mrs. James D. Cromer, first vice regent; Mrs. Dryden Powers, second vice regent; Mrs. S. M. Page Rees, recording secretary; Mrs. Owen C. McConnell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. McWhorter Milner, treasurer; Miss Annie Laurie Hill, registrar; Mrs. W. C. Carpenter, historian; Mrs. Moreland Speer, librarian; Mrs. John M. Slaton, auditor, and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, chaplain. New members of the executive board include Mesdames E. A. Thomas, Joseph M. High, Max E. Land, Thomas C. Whitner, J. Whiteford Russell, E. Rivers, James L. Logan and Elmer L. Kirk.

Well Qualified.
Mrs. Mell is well qualified to assume the regimen of this patriotic organization, as she possesses unusual executive ability and a personality of rare charm. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Powell Davis, and is descended from a long line of prominent southern and New England ancestors, tracing her lineage to the crown. She has served as registrar first and second vice regent of Atlanta Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution. She is state first vice regent of the Georgia Society, Daughters of the American Colonies; vice president of the Georgia Society, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America; corresponding secretary United Daughters 1812; historian General Society of the Mayflower Descendants.

Annual Reports.
Annual reports were given by the retiring officers, including Mrs. E. A. Thomas, regent; Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, first vice regent; Mrs. Aurelia Macch McMillan, second vice regent; Mrs. Forrest Barfield, recording secretary; Mrs. McWhorter Milner, treasurer; Mrs. Charles M. Love, treasurer; Miss Hazel Kirk, registrar; Mrs. O. H. Wright, historian; Mrs. John M. Slaton, auditor. Retiring members of the board of management are: Mesdames W. L. Randall, B. H. Palmer, R. E. Andoe, H. C. Shover, Misses Fannie B. Smith and Virginia Hardin, Mrs. Owen C. McConnell and Mrs. Moreland Speer. Reports from the National D. A. R. Congress held in Washington, D. C., in April were given by the delegates, Mrs. Howard McCall and Mrs. Charles F. Rice, and Miss Ruth Dabney Smith, page.

Children's Party.
Mrs. Charles C. Carpenter was hostess at a children's party yesterday afternoon at her home on Highland avenue honoring her young son, Charles C. Carpenter, Jr., in celebration of his sixth birthday anniversary. The guests were Bettine Wilkins, Elsie Russell, Corrine Kinimer, Jennie Moore, Vivian Newberry, Betty Sealy, Nolly Bloodworth, Copy Bloodworth, Eugene McLaughlin, Knox Fitzgerald, Knox Walker, Jerry Girardeau and Fred Sealy.

A FUNNY FIGHT IN THE MOONLIGHT.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

When wrong does triumph over right. The time has come for you to fight. —Old Mother Nature.

Those who will not fight for their rights soon find that they have no rights to fight for. This is as true of the little people in our world as of you and me. So you will find that they are always ready to fight when they have any chance at all.

Longfoot the Kangaroo Rat had made a discovery. It was a very wonderful discovery. It was the most wonderful discovery he ever had made. He could hardly believe his eyes and nose when they told him what he had found. It was a handful of grain. How it happened to be there in a little heap on the desert a little way from one of the doorways of his home he didn't stop to consider. Never had there been such a thing before. But that fact didn't bother Longfoot. He didn't even think of it. It was enough for him that it was there and that he had found it. His only thought now was to get that grain to his storehouse before any one else found it. So he went to work stuffing the grain into the pockets in his cheeks. Outside pockets they were and he stuffed them with his little white hands or forepaws.

So busy was Longfoot that he didn't notice Farmer Brown's Boy sitting close at hand. If he had he might have suspected where that grain had come from. Farmer Brown's Boy had come out that evening purposely to watch Longfoot and try to make his acquaintance. During the day he had seen the mound in which Longfoot made his home and when he had the darts in the front, which tap in double-breasted effect. The shoulders are cut long to form short sleeve extensions over the top of the arm. Designed in 4 sizes: small, 34-36; medium, 36-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. To make the frock for a medium size will require 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. Pocket flaps, and pocket flaps in contrasting material 2-3 of a yard will be required cut lengthwise. The width of the dress, at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 1/4 yards. Pongee, shantung, jersey or linen may be used for this style.

Presently another Kangaroo Rat appeared and at once discovered what Longfoot was doing. Of course he wanted a share. Longfoot stopped stuffing his pockets. The instant the other was near enough Longfoot leaped on him and kicked him with all his might. Those long hind feet were quite as good for kicking as for jumping. The other ran just a little way and then turned to face Longfoot. When he did so he sat up just the way a Kangaroo does. Longfoot did the same thing. Then they began to hop about in the funniest way. Farmer Brown's Boy had all he could do to keep from chuckling and sniggering.

Each was watching for a chance to catch the other off guard. Suddenly the other leaped and kicked. His long hind feet landed on Longfoot's back and Longfoot was up and hopping about. How it felt to be kicked once himself he got it and his kick sent the other rolling over in the sand. They didn't use their teeth. They fought with kicks instead of bites, and the manner in which they hopped about was very funny to see. It was the funniest fight Farmer Brown's Boy had ever seen.

For a few minutes neither had the advantage. Then Longfoot managed to kick the other over three times without being kicked once himself. This was enough and ended the fight. The other Rat decided that he wasn't interested in that little heap of grain and he did business somewhere else anyway. Longfoot triumphantly turned back to fill his pockets with that grain. Guess how he felt when he discovered that while he had been fighting still another Kangaroo Rat had made the most of opportunity and was leaving with his pockets full.

FARM PRICES IN APRIL HOLD RISING TREND

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Farm prices held in April the slight rise in the general average which was noted in March after an unprecedented decline.

The agriculture department warned today, however, that the trend since April 15 indicates that the level this month would be lower.

On April 15 the index remained at 91, one point higher than in February, when the lowest level was reached, but 38 points lower than April, 1930.

DOPE SMUGGLING CHARGED TO MAN

J. E. Hardy Alleged To Have Tried To Give Mor- phine to Prisoner.

Continuing their war against dope peddling in Atlanta, federal narcotic agents late Friday afternoon arrested J. E. Hardy, 30, of 120 Simpson street, who is alleged to have attempted to smuggle morphine to a prisoner at the Fulton tower. Seven other persons were locked up by the officers in another raid, but it was understood that no narcotic charge would be placed against them.

Federal Narcotic Inspector A. D. Stevenson, several of his squad and City Detective W. D. McGee arrested Hardy and placed him in the city jail, marked "hold for the government." It is said by the officers that he was attempting to smuggle a "deck" of morphine to a prisoner arrested in connection with the first "dope" raid staged here in April.

Later the officers raided a candy kitchen at Harris and Williams streets and caused the arrest of seven persons, though the officers stated that no narcotics were found. Six of the seven arrested were booked on charges of "suspicion" which probably will be changed to that of vagrancy, the officers stated. The seventh, Vera Campbell, 27, of 102 Harris street, and Mrs. A. E. Holley, 33 and 32, respectively, of 102 Harris street.

The six arrested and held on suspicion were: Herman Dewberry, 30, of 224 Hagley street; Charlie Wilson, 29, alias Jack Parker, no address; J. C. Kinsey, 25, of 636 Gillet street; A. G. Richardson, 43, of Fair Oak street, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Holley, 33 and 32, respectively, of 102 Harris street.

BILBO AGAIN REFUSES TO CALL LEGISLATURE

JACKSON, Miss., May 15.—(AP)—From his sick bed here today Governor T. G. Bilbo flatly turned down a compromise proposal of legislative conferees that he officially call an immediate special session to provide relief for Mississippi's strained financial condition, because the proposition failed to contain his non-impairment, no-investigation pledge.

A delegation of businessmen and legislators called upon him at the mansion and informed the governor that it had been decided to sponsor a purely business session and nothing more if the governor would issue the call.

"Every man would express himself in a resolution for a business session only and then sign it," H. T. Newell, businessman of Jackson and chairman of a joint conference of businessmen and legislators who met in Jackson today, told the governor.

"The (the legislators') expression is worth nothing," the governor replied. "You don't know them."

Lieutenant Governor Bidwell Adam, an administration leader, informed Bilbo that a subcommittee was waiting in the mansion to place the proposal before him.

"Does their their proposition include my pledge?" Bilbo asked.

"No," replied Adam.

"Then tell them I am too sick to see them," said Bilbo.

Barbecue Dinner Is Planned Today For Old Guard

Bertie Goodman, of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, and a member of the Old Guard, will be host today to the Old Guard battalion at a barbecue and dance at White Sulphur Springs in Milledgeville county.

Members of the Old Guard and their wives will journey to the resort in a motorcade, to form at the Ivy Street Garage at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon. The motorcade will be in charge of Walter Hancock, Goodloe Yancey, Charles DuPre and Sam Meyers. The start of the 80-mile journey will be at 2:30 o'clock, and reservations may be made by calling any of the above mentioned gentlemen.

The affair is to be a colorful one, and all members are to wear their blue fatigue uniforms, except associate members who have not as yet received their uniforms. Reservations have already been made with the adjutant for 125 persons, and it is expected that more will signify their intention of attending this morning.

The barbecue dinner will be served in the historical old hotel at the original White Sulphur Springs resort at 6 p. m., according to Will L. Hancock, chairman of the entertainment committee. Following the barbecue, the dance will begin. It is expected that the majority of the Old Guard will remain at the resort overnight, returning to Atlanta Sunday morning.

Palbearers will be: C. T. Taylor, Judge V. S. Morgan, Dr. W. S. Elkin, Jr., Claude C. Blount, Dr. B. V. Wilson, W. K. Marbut, S. H. Allen and W. G. Bryan. Decease will be conducted by Dr. A. J. Moncrief and Dr. Ellis A. Fuller. A. S. Turner is in charge.

DONALDSON TO BEGIN TECHWOOD ESTIMATE

Charles Donaldson, chief of construction, will begin estimates at once regarding completion of the extension of Techwood drive following appearance before council's street committee of Councilman Claude I. Barnwell, of the sixth ward, backed by a delegation urging that the work proceed.

In addition, the committee voted to empower Donaldson to negotiate for the widening of Rotherham street from Pryor to Whitehall. Plans call for a 50-foot street instead of the 30-foot width at present is devoted to the roadway.

The construction department will take steps to reconstruct the monument to General Walker, of Mexican War fame, under instructions from the committee.

Council Monday will get a recommendation that paving of Tuxedo avenue, from Fairfax to Claire drives, be awarded to the Hornbuckle Contracting Company at a cost of $9,235.32.

TALKING IT OVER BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

It Is Rather Nice for the King of Siam to Bring His Happy Marriage to These Shores Where We Are So Often Told That We Have Few Such.

What refreshing reading we have had recently about King Prajadhipok of Siam! He is the son of a polygamist marriage, his father having had several score of wives. Whether it was the sorrow and suffering which he saw in his father's home, or the influence of his English schooling, we do not know, but when he was very young he settled his affections on his beautiful little cousin and married her when he was 14 years old. A real love match, so they say.

Of course, there is an explanation. She was clever enough to realize that her claim to his continued affection rested on her ability to make herself a real companion. It is said that she is his favorite golf partner and his favorite tea and dinner companion. Even a real love match, such as this one seems to be, cannot sustain itself on love alone. It must rest on a common sense base that includes something more than emotional appeal, something more than sentiment.

"Ah!" says the woman who is tied down to the stove and the sewing machine and the wash tub, "she has leisure in which to plan, and leisure in which to carry out her plans. She has no household cares, no responsibilities which sap her strength and dull her sensibilities. She has servants to do her scrubbing, and more servants to do her cooking, and more servants to do her cleaning. She may play golf and dress for tea and dress for dinner and present herself in the pink of perfection at any hour of the day, without thought for expense, without the neglect of any duty."

Quite true, but many a woman who has the same opportunity neglects to take advantage of it. And many another who has all the drawbacks to contend with and all the cares and responsibilities of the impecunious housewife manages somehow to keep up with her husband.

The woman of this latter type deserves far more credit. The old saying, "Where there's a will there's a way," is as true of marriage as of anything in the world. If a woman will only face the facts as they are she can overcome most of the difficulties that lie in the way of her success as a wife.

The average man marries a woman because he loves her and wants her for his life companion. Neither of them can calculate the difficulties that will stand in the way of the realization of their ambition. Neither of them knows what life holds in store in the way of sickness and adversity of every sort. If they are young neither gives any thought to anything but the unspeakable joy of being married and being together. They are sure that love is enough. Well, it isn't. Love must have something to feed on. Love must be nourished and, like the grass on the lawn, must be tended with unremitting care.

The old trite sayings worn slick by long usage are full of wisdom, among them "Woman's task is never done." The average woman spends the first part of her married life trying to be a good companion to her husband and before that task is done the necessity for doing the same thing over again with her children has presented itself. If she has been faithful and successful with the first she has her husband's help with the second, and for that alone she may count herself paid in full.

But it is not all hard work, nor thankless. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, quoting an editorial from a sophisticated weekly, which always has some whimsical editorial in its pages, says of the pope's encyclical concerning marriage, "What Pope Pius seemed to us to have missed about Christian marriage was this: that with all its falling from grace, it is still a lot of fun."

I heard a mother say recently that she was going to stress that idea with her own daughters when they get old enough to consider marriage, and if she reads this quotation from Dr. Coffin she will have the satisfaction of knowing that a distinguished clergyman has agreed with her in believing that girls, and boys as well, should look on marriage as a game full of fun, so long as both parties are playing hard and fair and square.

It is rather nice for the King of Siam to come and bring his happy marriage to these shores where every paper and magazine you pick up has some article on the reasons for the failure of marriages or the problem of divorce, or the laws governing these.

AUTOIST IS SLUGGED AND MACHINE STOLEN

Bandits Friday night slugged one man into unconsciousness and took his automobile, and in another incident robbed a couple of $31, according to police reports.

F. J. Dunn, of the Midtown hotel, was found lying unconscious in the street on Howell Mill road near Bishop street, late Friday night by Olin Harrell, of the Atlanta Title & Trust Company. Dunn was taken to Grady hospital, where attaches revived him. Though badly beaten, they stated, he was not seriously injured.

Dunn told police that he had been visiting friends and on leaving entered his car, a sedan. A white man, hiding in the rear of the car, demanded his money, but before he could comply struck him over the head and he lost consciousness. Dunn said. His car was taken, but his money was not molested, it was found.

In the second affair, W. R. Skinner, of the Terminal hotel, a cripple, was held up by a lone white man, he told police, at Jones and Marietta street, and robbed of all of his money—$51.

WHEAT DELEGATION LANDS IN LONDON

LONDON, May 15.—The American delegation to the world wheat conference, opening Monday, arrived Friday aboard the liner Leviathan. It was comprised of Stewart Stewart, secretary of the American Wheat Growers' Association, and Mr. McKelvie, who is scheduled to address the conference on American plan of remedying the international wheat surplus, said in answer to questions: "We have our ideas as to what may help the situation but we must wait until they formally are delivered before the meeting."

RYDER MUST SERVE SING SING TERM

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Harold Russell Ryder, once a partner in the brokerage firm of Woody & Co., which failed for $2,000,000 a year ago, was sentenced to 3 to 10 years in Sing Sing today.

Last December Ryder pleaded guilty to grand larceny, the specific charge was the misuse of $35,000 given to him for investment purposes by John Vaneek, president of the Equitable Holding Company.

WARDEN'S OFFICE EXPENSES LIGHT

Overhead expenses in dispensing $10,924.12 in March through the warden's office was less than 3.8 per cent of the amount expended, members of the council were informed Friday by Councilman Ed L. Almond, chairman.

Of the amount spent, the largest portion was for groceries and fuel, for which 4,800 orders were issued. William H. Johnson, warden, filed an itemized statement of all expenditures.

22 Inches Per Hour Is Speed of Crab

PARIS, May 15.—(UP)—Professor Gravel, of the Paris zoo, has established the crab long-distance endurance record as 101 miles in 29 years or 22 inches an hour by watching a neptunus pelagius tear through the Suez canal from the Red sea to the Mediterranean.

SALOONS COMPLAIN OF AL'S MEASURE

CHICAGO, May 15.—(UP)—Saloonkeepers have complained to city scaler of weights and measures, Joe Grein, that Al Capone is sending them 32-gallon beer barrels lacking four or five gallons of being full and using threatening tactics to collect full payment.

COURSEY BELIEVED VICTIM OF AMNESIA

Relatives of Marion F. Coursey, 53-year-old owner and manager of the Coursey Broom Works, on Lee street, Friday night were of the opinion that he was wandering about Atlanta, suffering from a lapse of memory, as they had received definite reports that he had been seen here. He had been missing since Tuesday.

Mr. Coursey was reported seen Tuesday morning in a bank in Gainesville, where he had gone on business. When he failed to return to his home in East Point Tuesday night his family became alarmed and a search was instigated.

More than a year ago, members of his family stated Friday night, he lost his memory for several days, and it is thought that this may have occurred again.

MANN ACT VIOLATION CHARGED TO FLORIDAN

Girl Shoots Youth and Tells Police of Being Kid- naped.

LEBANON, Tenn., May 15.—(AP)—Joe Avellanal, 27, son of a wealthy Tampa (Fla.) family, wounded this afternoon at his apartment here by a girl companion of Tampa, tonight is held on charges of violating the Mann act and of possessing narcotics. The girl is Vera Castillo, 18.

Chief of Police R. P. Gann said Miss Castillo reported the shooting to him and told him that "Avellanal kidnaped her" in Tampa Thursday and that this afternoon he threatened her with a gun. Chief Gann quoted her as saying she snatched the gun from Avellanal's hand and shot him.

Upon search of Avellanal's apartment, Chief Gann said he found a quantity of narcotics together with implements that "looked like burglar tools."

Avellanal, secretary to Judge W. R. Chambers, dean of the Cumberland University Law school here, was wounded in the shoulder and taken to a hospital. He has been removed to the city jail. Miss Castillo is staying at Chief Gann's home tonight pending preliminary hearing tomorrow morning. No charges have been placed against her so far.

Heroism in Saving Three Lives Brings Medal to Hapeville Boy

The heroism of a 13-year-old Hapeville Boy Scout, in halting a runaway automobile, was rewarded Friday morning when Raymond Grantham, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Grantham, 100 Waters avenue, Hapeville, was presented with the George Thordike Angell medal of the American Humane Educational Association of Boston.

The presentation was made at the regular chapel service of the North Avenue school in Hapeville, where the young hero is a student of the fifth grade. Knox Walker, supervisor of Fulton county elementary schools, presented the medal, and Mrs. Katherine Weatherbee, chairman of the fifth district of humane education, presented young Grantham with a book. The student body, faculty and members of the Hapeville Humane Society were present. It was through the recommendation of the latter body that the award was made.

The act of heroism for which the youth gained national recognition was performed by him on a Saturday afternoon about five weeks ago. While on an errand for his mother, he saw an automobile, owned by Mrs. J. Rayburn, of the Stewart avenue, Hapeville, start rolling down a hill in front of the city hall. In the closed car were three small girls. One was a niece of Mrs. Catlin, who had parked the car and stepped into the city hall.

The automobile brakes slipped and it began to roll down the hill, heading for the opposite curb. The children were screaming and attempting to climb from the car. Young Grantham quickly boarded the moving machine, climbed beneath the wheel and halted the car when it was a few feet

CANDIDATES SPEAK AT SLATON SCHOOL

Seven Aspirants Heard at Meeting Called by Friends of Sikes.

Pleas for votes in the May 23 election, in which will be selected a Fulton county commissioner to fill the unexpired term of the late Edward H. Inman, Friday night were made by seven of the 15 qualified candidates at a meeting held at the Slaton school by friends of Paul Sikes, one of the aspirants.

George A. Eckford, Fulton county legislator-elect, opened the meeting, and was followed by the following entrants:

Sikes, W. F. Rutherford, Mayor Pro Tem, G. Everett Millican, Trammell Scott, J. M. Barnwell, W. L. Jones and Thomas J. Lewis.

All promised economical and businesslike administration of county affairs and a curbing of "waste and extravagance."

Former Alderman William B. Hartsfield presented a resolution opposing daylight saving time for Atlanta, and those gathered went on record as opposing it.

Crackers Pound Out 7-to-1 Victory To Even Memphis Series

GREAT FIELD AWAITS DERBY CALL TODAY

CRACKERS BEAT TRIBESMEN, 7-1, TO EVEN SERIES

Carlyle Hits Home Run; Game Today at 2:15 O'Clock.

By Ralph McGill.

Cracker bats made bad medicine for Chief Hughie Harmon Friday afternoon at Spiller's field and the home club pounded out a 7-to-1 victory over the Memphis Chickasaws to even the series at one-all. The win put the Crackers in a tie for second place. The game was another rowdy one. It almost got out of hand in the fourth as the Chickasaws stormed around Spike Shannon. Hamel was ejected from the game and things finally got back to normalcy after much arguing, rowing and harsh words.

Climax Blethen, the Maine Moose Hunter, has been very sorry indeed that he did not live during the Indian wars. He never got to hunt Indians. Therefore he took his box duet with Chief Harmon very seriously indeed and pitched so well the Tribe got just seven scattered hits.

CARLYLE HITS 'EM.

The Crackers got eleven but they were of the high-powered variety. There was a home run, a triple and two doubles mixed in with the singles. Roy Carlyle got his second home run in as many days over the little green fence in right field. The Bona Allen Shoe Company in Buford is giving a pair of shoes to the players hitting balls over the fence.

If Roy Carlyle keeps on he is going to relieve the employment situation no little. They will have to put on extra help to turn out shoes for Roy Carlyle. If your baby needs a new pair of shoes, get them from Roy Carlyle. See Roy Carlyle. He is going to have more shoes than a show dog can jump over.

The Crackers got one tally in the third to take the lead they never relinquished. Climax Blethen singled scored on Poon Tait's single and advanced on Barron's sacrifice and scored on Poon Tait's single.

THE BIG INNING.

The fourth was a big one for the Crackers. The Tribe got so incensed at the umpiring of Spike Shannon that they were muttering terrible words and mentioning prominent characters out loud. Shirley singled. Lamotte doubled scored him. Ryan went out. But Whitney got the first of his three walks.

Here's an additional paragraph for Deb Williams. He hit back of first base. It was a base hit. That was it. It would have been against any other team but Memphis. Spike Shannon flamed out there. He raged back and got it. It was so deep that Lamotte scored and Whitney went to third.

Red Barron singled. Spike Shannon scored. The Chickasaw ball was foul. Doc Prothro bounced the ball right on the home plate. It bounced up and almost struck Whitney. He was in the snuggle. He waved his mask at Prothro but did not put him out. Harmon balked on the next play. And Barron scored. Climax Blethen ended the inning with an infield out.

ANOTHER ROW.

Doc Prothro singled to start the fifth for the Chickasaws. Joe Hutcheson also singled. Deb Williams hit and was called out at first on the second half of a double play.

Frank Longinetti, the Memphis secretary, made the baseball reporters blush in the press box as he condemned the play. He hurried right down as the Chickasaws around Spike Shannon again. He was in the lines would take more than the gate receipts.

Prothro, who had gone to third on the play, scored. Barry singled. It was the only run the Chickasaws made.

The Crackers tallied two more in the seventh when Barron was hit by a pitched ball and Tait came along to hammer the ball over for a home run to start the wheels spinning in the Bona Allen Shoe Company.

The Crackers play again today at 2:15 as the first game of a double-header, the Jackets and the Bulldogs following.

WHY, GEORGE!

CHICAGO, May 15.—(UP)—Charging his wife, who weighs 115 pounds, was cruel to him, George Traflet, 220-pound football player and boxer, filed suit for divorce here. Mrs. Traflet countered with a cross-complaint.

The historic Kentucky Derby will be run today at Louisville, Ky. Above are two favorites, Mate, left, and Twenty Grand, right. In the center is the Downs race course where the 57th renewal will be witnessed by a gigantic crowd such as pictured above. With clear skies forecast one of the largest crowds in Derby history is expected to storm the gates for the race. It is an open event this year with no real outstanding favorite. The two pictured above are getting the most play but there are a number of others who have a chance. Other races are richer but the Kentucky Derby is THE prize most desired by horsemen. Striblings Name Russell Trainer

MACON, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—"Pa" Stribling, father-manager of W. L. (Young) Stribling, announced here today that he and his son had decided definitely on Lake F. Russell, head football coach at Mercer University here, as their trainer for the forthcoming title match with Max Schmeling at Cleveland July 3. Russell will report to Stribling's camp at Lake Geuga, near Cleveland, June 1. The Mercer coach is known as a very capable conditioner of athletes. The Striblings today bade farewell to Macon amid the well wishes of friends, and left for their farm at deKokwee. They will remain there until Monday, leaving Monday morning for Atlanta, where "Pa" has his new light-heavy protegee, Battling Bozo, fighting Monday night Tuesday at the Striblings will leave by automobile for Cleveland, stopping over at Asheville, N. C., Tuesday night and continuing the journey Wednesday morning.

TOM LOUGHRAN BEATS CAMPOLO

By Edward J. Neil,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, won a 10-round decision over Victorio Campolo, Argentine, tonight and climbed back to the place he held among the heavyweights two years ago. Loughran did everything but knock out Campolo and it seemed for a time as though he might step out of his master boxing role and do that. As it was, he won the unanimous decision of Referee Joe Gans and two judges. He was given eight of the 10 rounds.

Loughran got away to a bad start as Victorio rushed him around the ring, belting both hands for the body. He let Campolo force the going in the first round but for an accident in the eighth session. The heads of the fighters clashed coming out of clinch and Tommy pulled away with blood streaming from a gash in his left eyebrow. Loughran immediately went on the defensive to save the victory but he virtually had clinched.

He let Campolo force the going in the ninth and the Argentine's concentration on the bad eye in close gave him an edge on that round. Tommy was himself again in the tenth and added steadily to his already large point margin.

Loughran, by his victory, eliminated the last heavyweight standing between him and recognition once more as in the class of Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling. Since his knockout by Sharkey two years ago, Tommy has whipped nine heavyweights—among them Max Baer, Ernie Schaff, and Tuffy Griffiths in addition to Campolo.

The defeat was a bitter one for Campolo, who had been a contender for the title.

BARNES HOLDS JAYCEE TITLE

Fowler Is Beaten, 2-1, in Finals at Capital City.

By Roy White.

Pete Barnes, of the West End Golf Club, won his third consecutive Junior Chamber of Commerce championship Friday on the Capital City Country Club course in the finals of the annual spring tournament. Barnes defeated Forrest Fowler, of the Capital City Club, 2-1, in a match that produced little exceptionally good golf. Fowler was two strokes behind Barnes in the second round.

Both players had a very good round on the first nine. Barnes carded a 37, one stroke over par, while Fowler was two strokes behind. Barnes was 2 up at the turn.

On the back nine neither player showed any consistency and both were constantly in trouble. Barnes played practically every hole safely and maintained a slight advantage throughout. His score for the 18 holes was 78, which equaled his medalist round Tuesday morning. Fowler finished a couple of strokes behind the winner.

It was one of the most successful tournaments that the Junior Chamber of Commerce has ever held. The scores in the qualifying round were unusually high, due to a strong wind and a heavy course, but Wednesday, Thursday and Friday produced some unusually good rounds, particularly in the lower flights.

J. B. Roberts defeated Bill Healey, 1 up, on the 20th green Friday in the longest match of the finals. Roberts made one of his best recoveries on the 18th green, staying in the match, and his accurate putting throughout was a feature. Healey's driving was outstanding all the way. Trophies and prizes were given winners and runners-up.

Howard Yancey and Willie Livingston, club professionals, assisted members of the committee in staging the tournament which drew 60 entries.

Scribes Favor Twenty Grand

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—(UP)—Thirteen out of 20 newspapermen here for the Kentucky Derby tonight picked Twenty Grand to triumph in the historic classic tomorrow. Four favored Mate and one picked Pittsburgher. Mate received 12 votes for second place, Twenty Grand 3. Equipse 2, Pittsburgher 1.

Ed Danforth

CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—The man says fair and warmer for Saturday. If the man is right as to the lighting effects that means the miraculous beauty of a fast track and a glittering setting for the 57th Derby. And if he is correct as to temperature it means that those who did not bring summer clothing will burn down.

It is blazing hot today and the struggling fields in the regular races move around in a light golden haze of dust.

The infield, charmingly landscaped, seems to doze in what really is the first day of summer. The lush bluegrass is dotted with patches of clover that escaped the eye of ground keepers this wet spring.

A JUST REWARD.

Old-time Kentucky horsemen believed that they would meet the shades of their good horses on the other side.

Which may have led one to imagine that here at the Downs the departed winners are permitted to come back and graze on the bluegrass of the infield every Derby week.

At least the winner of a Derby should be given that much for his devotion, his loyalty to a trust, his disregard of self and his challenge to fear.

GALLANT COMPANY.

They must really be there. Even the crudest follower of the turf, who rarely looks beyond the prices posted in the betting shed, has heard of the past winners, and gives them a thought now and then.

Aristides, Baden-Baden, Day Star, Hindoo, Leonatus, Ben Ali, Azra, Ben Brush, Plaudit, Pink Star, Meridian, Donerail, Old Rosebud—these are some of the names of the elect.

And tomorrow another name will be added to the list, out of the hurrying, disorderly group of straining horses, one will rush out to win. Surely with victory goes the privilege of coming back to graze over the infield and see who next will be coming along to join the bunch.

THIS AND THAT.

Twenty Grand still looks like the probable winner to me. He will be coupled with Surf Board or Anchors Aweigh as the Greentree entry, which makes that ticket even more nearly certain. His running mate will go out and set the early pace and might actually hold on to the finish.

However, Charley Kutsinger, who will ride Twenty Grand, is an habitual rail rider, they say. That means that he tries to save ground and maneuver to come through on the rail. If Charley tries to ride his usual race in this take the recent bank failures in Louisville will seem as mild as the financial crash of a hat cleaning stand.

If Twenty Grand comes to grief trying to knife his way through the big field it might as well be Pittsburgher, the brawny westerner, owned by the Shady Brook farm. This colt has all the fineness of a night club bouncer and can run over anything that gets in his way. Where Pittsburgher comes from they bump each other; none will knock him far off stride.

And again it might be Mate, the glorious red chestnut, who won the Preakness and may come right back as another Gallant Fox to win both big events. One thing certain, Mate will get a grand ride from that pigskin master, George Ellis.

Spanish Play, a winter track winner, finished here at the Downs, along with Sweep All, another western candidate, heads apart with Pittsburgher in a really remarkable race and either

JACKETS LOSE TO GEORGIA, 17-0

Georgia Takes Wild Game at Spiller's To Go in Lead.

Georgia Bulldogs took the Jackets Friday afternoon at Spiller's field and shook them viciously around for the space of a couple of hours before a good crowd that came to see the two ball games. Atlanta-Memphis and Georgia-Tech. The score was 17 to 0.

The fourth and final game of the season for both teams will be played this afternoon at Spiller's field, immediately after the Cracker-Memphis game. The Crackers begin at 2:15 and the college game will get started about 4:15. Both games may be seen for the price of one.

Friday's game was a nightcap, all right. The fans got tired watching the Georgia boys run and went home to bed early. The Jackets tried, but couldn't get the ball game at all.

It all started as quite a friendly game, but Georgia couldn't let it go at that. Blanked for two innings, in the third the Bulldogs launched an attack which netted 17 runs on 18 hits, good for 28 bases, and six Tech errors. "Catfish" Smith and Buster Mott, both contributed home runs; each came through with a triple.

And Kenny Hamilton, Coach Bill White's star pitcher, led Tech to two lonely hits, one a scratch single and the other a smashing double by Ike Farmer.

That's the story. Figures show that the Bulldogs scored four runs on four hits and two errors in the third inning; one on a hit and an error in the fourth; two on two hits, one of them a "Catfish" home run, in the fifth; five on five hits, among them "Catfish's" triple, and an error in the sixth; none at all in the seventh; two on two hits, including Buster's triple—it was Georgia's most wasteful session—in the eighth, and three on three hits, most important of the lot being Buster's homer, in the ninth.

Georgia's record in the series is 4-2. In the first game, Tech won 4-2. In the second, Georgia won 17-0. In the third, Georgia won 17-0. In the fourth, Georgia won 17-0.

Earl Sande Sees A 2-Horse Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—(AP)—Earl Sande, who rode his third Kentucky Derby winner last year astride Gallant Fox, said Sande today, "It makes me a little homesick not to figure on riding a horse tomorrow. I had my first derby mount back in 1914 when I was just a caddy kid and I've ridden about seven all together."

It's an unusual thing that not a jockey listed for tomorrow's race has ever won a derby.

Next to Twenty Grand are ranked Pittsburgher, the rawboned colt of Theodore Mueller, a native Kentuckian, and one of the best horses in the country. Mate, the bestick star, who won the Preakness.

In the west Pittsburgher finds some enthusiasm among the young masters of the track. He is a great showman with a great chance to shoulder his way through to win. And in stringing with Mate a section of the east see hope of a great spring, drawing away in the tracks made by Sir Barton and Gallant Fox before him and adding the Derby purse to his pocket-book.

GIVEN ADVANTAGE. Drawing for post positions gave Twenty Grand an advantageous place in the middle of the field, with Pittsburgher and Mate far out.

At the rail position is Sweep All, the rugged colt entered by the Dixiana Farm, and one of the best horses in the country. He is a very tough spot. Next is Equipse himself, not at all badly placed for hustling into an early lead. Anchors Aweigh, a great runner, drew No. 3, but he probably will be withdrawn from the Greentree entry, in view of the fast track offered up, the colt whose name is on every elevator button, has No. 4, but also may not start unless it rains. Don Leon, in fifth position, is an uncertain starter. Withdrawn from the race are the probable will shift the others into better positions.

In the sixth place was drawn The Mongol, entered by the young masters of Hamburg Place, Joe and Edward Madden. The Mongol is given no chance to win, but the boys entered him in memory of their father, John E. Madden, whose name is coupled with illustrious chapters of the Kentucky Derby history. He bred five Derby winners—Plaudit, in 1908; Old Rosebud, 1914, and holder of the record for the Derby of 2:05.25; Sir Barton, Preakness and Derby winner in 1919; Zen, in 1924; and the greatest winner of all time, and Flying Ebony, the surprise winner of 1925.

LAIDERS IN SEVENTH. Laidler, the speed marvel, is in seventh place, and No. 8 is Twenty Grand, the favorite. The right of Twenty Grand is Spanish Play, one of the western splashes. Then comes Boys Howdy, the colt from Canada and a dangerous bouncer. Surf Board, the fleet half of the Greentree entry.

MADISON WINS.

MADISON, Ga., May 15.—Madison Aggies defeated Monroe Aggies, 4 to 3, in a fast and well-played game today. Bussey's center fielding for Madison was spectacular. The teams play again tomorrow.

Two College Stars Talk Cracker Terms

Two collegians will talk of signing with the Crackers today. One is Freddie Sington, Alabama's All-American football player and a hitting outfielder. The other is Claude Herrin, Oglethorpe infielder.

Sington, who had been asked to come here for a workout, appeared unexpectedly Friday morning. He had been expected earlier in the week. Herrin has been working out for three days. Sington has already graduated from Alabama, advance work last summer enabling him to get away early. He expects to play ball in the summer and coach football for Wallace Wade at Duke in the fall.

GRAND HOTEL

By VICKI BAUM

INSTALLMENT V.

"Naturally such a piece of news as that makes one think and I have not slept for several nights, but only kept thinking things over. The result is that I have come to the conclusion not to return to Fredericksdorf, but to enjoy life a little during the few weeks I have to live. It is not very nice to go to one's grave at 46 without having lived at all and only been harassed and starved and bullied by Herr P. at the works and by the wife at home. It seems all wrong that this should be the end of it all when one has never had a single real pleasure. Unfortunately, dear friend, I cannot express myself properly. So I can only add that the will I made in the summer before my operation remains in force though the conditions have now altered. I have, for example, had all my savings transferred here from the bank, also I have borrowed a considerable sum on my life policy, also I have brought the legacy from my father of 3,500 marks with me in cash. In this way I can live for a few weeks as a rich man and such is my intention. Why should only the Freysings get anything out of life while fools like us do nothing but pinch and save? In all I have taken 8,540 marks. Anna can have what is left over, and in my opinion I don't owe her any more. She has given me a wretched life of it with that tongue of hers and no child either. I will keep you apprised of how I go on, but I must request your professional secrecy. Berlin is a fine town and greatly increased in size, when one has not been here for years. I think of a trip to Paris, too, as I know French pretty well from business correspondence. As you see I am keeping the flag flying and feel better than for a long time past."

"OTTO KRINGELEIN."

"P. S.—Tell our friends at the musical society that I have gone to a sanatorium."
Kringelein read the letters through. He had composed them in the course of two sleepless nights. He was not quite satisfied. It seemed to him that something essential was left unsaid in the one to the solicitor, but he could not find out where the omission lay. Kringelein, though he was of a diffident and modest nature, was not actually stupid. He had idealism and aspirations. For example, he called himself "moribund" as a joke and this expression was one he had encountered in a book from the lending library, which he had read with some trouble and often discussed with the solicitor. Kringelein had lived from childhood the ordinary life of a small provincial town, the rather dreary, uninspired, and pointless life of a petty clerk. Early in life and with out any strong impulse he had married Fraulein Anna Sauerkatz, the daughter of Sauerkatz, the grocer. During the time between their engagement and marriage she seemed to him attractive, but very soon after the marriage he found her hateful. She was disagreeable and parsimonious and obsessed by petty cares. Kringelein had a fixed salary with a small rise every five years, and as his health was not robust, his wife and her family pined him from the first day to a rigid economy in the vague prospect of his becoming a charge on them later on. For example, he was denied the piano that he had longed for all his life. Also he had to sell his little dog, Zipfel, as soon as a tax was put upon dogs. He always had a sore place on his neck from the frayed edges of the old collar he was forced to wear. Now and then it occurred to him that something was not right with his life, but what it was he did not know. Often at the meetings of the musical society, when the high tremolo of his tone voice clung about the other voices, he had a soaring, blissful feeling.

ing as though he himself escaped on wings.
Often in the evening he went out along the road to Mickenau, and then leaving the road and climbing across the wet ditches, he wandered into the country along the balks dividing field from field. There was a soft murmur between the stalks of the corn and when the cars stroked his hand he felt a strange pleasure. He had also had some remarkable and happy experiences under chloroform in the hospital, though he had forgotten them. It was only in little things that Otto Kringelein, the bookkeeper, differed from his fellows. But these little things combined perhaps with the bewildering dose of death in his veins, had brought this "moribund" to Berlin's most expensive hotel, and set him down before those sheets of notepaper to which he had confided his strange resolve and its pitiful causes.

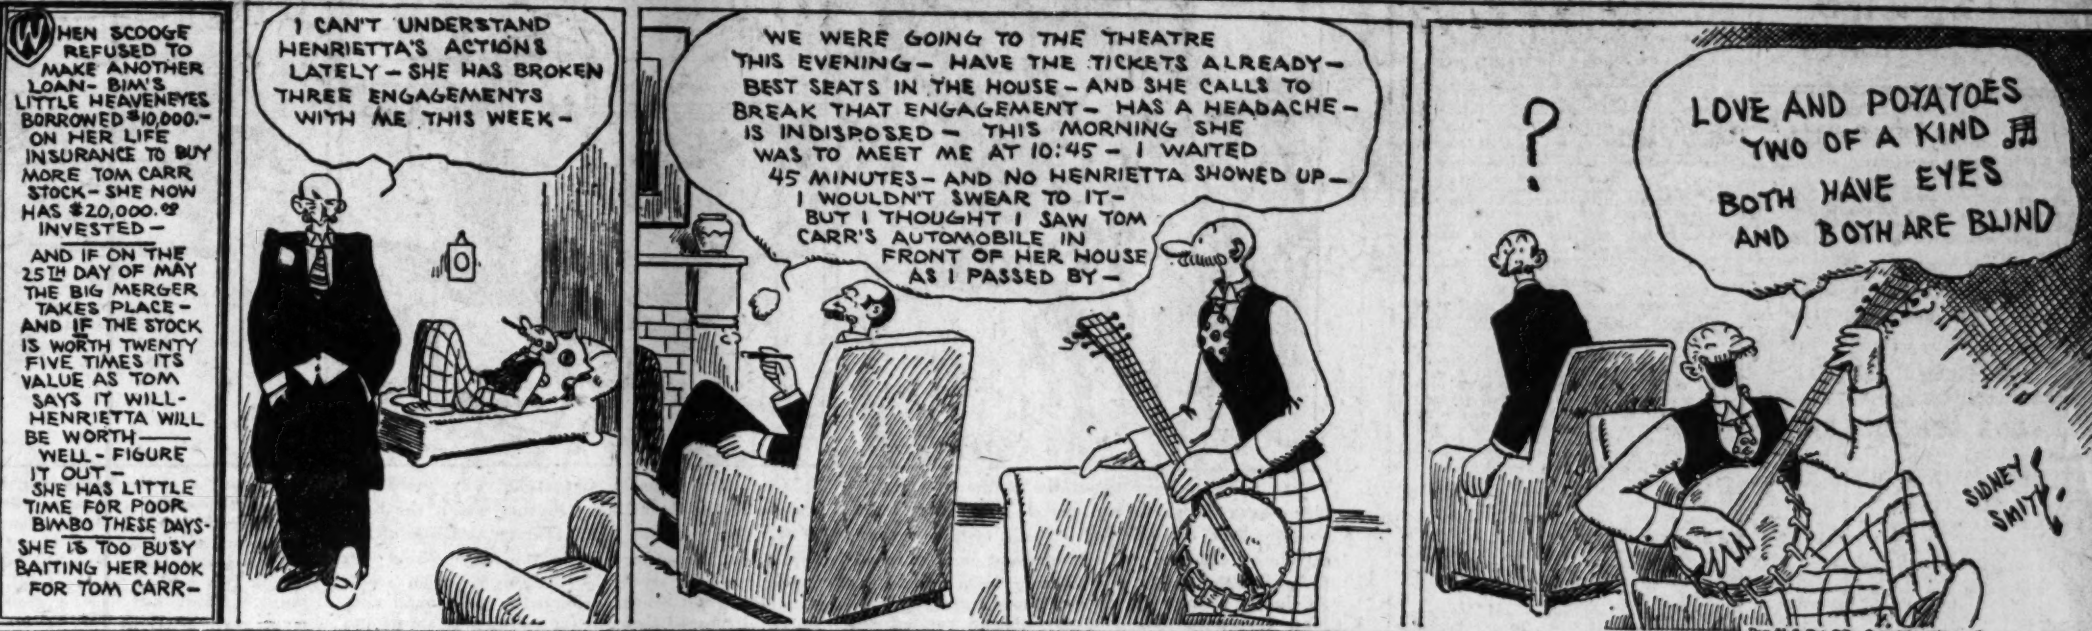

Kringelein rose rather unsteadily to his feet and as he went with his three letters through the reading room he met Dr. Ottersschlag. He had a violent shock when he found the mangled side of the doctor's face turned inquiringly towards him.
"Well? Settled down?" Ottersschlag asked listlessly. He wore a dinner jacket and looked down at the toes of his patent-leather shoes.
"Yes, just about. First class," Kringelein answered with embarrassment. "Thanks. Indeed it is you I have to thank, sir. You were so extremely kind—"
"Kind? I? Not at all. Oh, about the room? Not a bit. X'see, I've been wanting to move on for a time ago, only I'm too lazy. Miserable joint, this hotel. If you'd taken my room, I'd have been on the train now bound for Milan or somewhere. Been very nice. Well, it really doesn't make any difference. Nasty weather everywhere in March. Same wherever you stick it out. May just as well stay here."

"You travel a great deal, sir, no doubt?" Kringelein asked shyly. He was ready to attribute immense wealth or high birth to every visitor in the hotel. He made a bow of the utmost Fredericksdorfian elegance as he went on to say timidly: "Allow me to introduce myself—Kringelein. You have seen a lot of the world, sir?"
Ottersschlag turned aside the "souvenir from Flanders," he said. "Been everywhere every one else goes—India and a few places besides." He smiled faintly at the inordinate hunger for such experiences that shone in the blue glint behind Kringelein's glasses.
"It is my intention to travel, too," said Kringelein. "The head of our firm, Freysing, for example, goes abroad every year at about the same time as he was at St. Moritz. Last Easter he took his whole family to Capri. That sort of thing must be wonderful!"
"Have you any family?" asked Dr. Ottersschlag, laying aside his paper. Kringelein took five seconds to consider the matter and then replied:
"No."
"No?" returned Ottersschlag, and in his mouth the word had something irrevocable about it.
"First I should like to go to Paris," said Kringelein. "Paris must be a beautiful city?"
Dr. Ottersschlag, who up to now had shown a glimmer of warmth and interest, seemed to be falling asleep. He frequently had such moments of enervation in the course of the day, and the only resource he had against them was a secret and vicious kind. "You must go to Paris in May," he murmured.
"I shan't have time for that," Kringelein said quickly.
Dr. Ottersschlag got up abruptly and left him. "I'm going to my room to lie down a bit," he said, more to himself than to Kringelein, who was left standing with his three letters in the reading room. The newspaper that Ottersschlag had been glancing through fell to the floor. It was penciled over with scribbles of little men and over each little man was a thick cross. Kringelein, slightly ashamed, left the reading room too, and timidly went in search of the dining room. Sounds of music issued from it, insistent, though subdued, and the alternating drag and beat echoed all through the big hotel.
